Strong U. S.-British Force Races Over Tunisia Border

CAPT. RICKENBACKER SAVED

New Naval Battle Rages in Solomon Islands Area

FRENCH FIGHT GERMANS IN TUNIS STREETS

Eighth Army Sweeps 40 Miles Past Tobruk; More Axis Transports Shot Down.

By The Associated Press

French and German troops battled in the streets of ancient Tunis today while the vanguard of a powerful Anglo-American expeditionary force raced across the Tunisian frontier to combat Nazi air-borne invaders of the pro-Nazi North African buffer state.

The battle between American-French Algeria and Italian Tunisia

Simultaneously, British headquarters announced that Gen. B. L. Montgomery's victorious British Eighth army had swept 40 miles beyond fallen Tobruk in pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's fleeing troops.

Hitler's high command acknowledged that the British were attacking "with undiminished force on a wide front." The Italian high command also reported heavy enemy pressure" in the Libyan desert.

Abandoned without a fight, Tobruk fell to the British yesterday morning, and today's communique said the triumphant imperials already had cleared the desert as far westward as Gazala.

"On with the task—good hunting to you all—" was the message General Montgomery sent to his troops as the chase of Rommel's tattered forces continued.

"In three weeks we have completely smashed the German and Italian army," the British field commander said, announcing the total destruction of 12 axis divisions.

"We have made a very good start and today there are no German or Italian soldiers on Egyptian territory except as prisoners," Montgomery told his troops. "Our job is not finished yet."

A British communique indicated that Adolf Hitler was making a desperate attempt to reinforce his tottering grip on the French protectorate of Tunisia, reporting that allied fighters yesterday shot down seven large axis aircraft out of a formation of 60 planes enroute from North Africa toward Sicily. Six others were badly damaged.

Probably Transport Planes

These were presumably axis transport planes returning north to pick up more troops and supplies. Allied headquarters said the Germans already had landed 12-ton tanks in Tunisia by air and were trying to bring other reinforcements by sea.

French radio broadcast said a naval battle was in progress off the German-occupied Algeria, next door to Tunisia, which suggested that allied warships were attacking the axis sea-borne reinforcements.

Latest dispatches pictured Tunisia, site of the 2,700-year-old Carthaginian empire, as the scene of widespread battle, with French troops fiercely resisting parachute troops in the crooked winding streets of Tunis, the capital, and other strategic centers.

French soldiery in North Africa had now apparently swung over to the side of the United Nations spurred on by appeals by such leaders as Admiral Jean Darlan, Gen. Henri Honore Giraud and Gen. Auguste Nogues.

All these former French military chieftains now are collaborating with the allies.

Galion Man Named On Truck Mileage Committee

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The office of defense transportation set up an Ohio subcommittee to map up plans for the reduction of truck mileage in the local operation of petroleum in that state. Director Joseph B. Eastman announced.

The subcommittee will consult with petroleum distributors and with the ODT state petroleum transport advisory committee, the members of which also were announced by Eastman.

Members of the advisory committee include C. B. Wilhelmy of Galion, chairman; F. J. Egner of Canton, vice chairman; W. H. Hall of Ironton, and W. S. Mundy of Bristolville.

Marion Co. Completes Plans for Gas Ration Registration

With announcement today of hours when the county centralized schools will be open next week, arrangements were virtually completed for the gasoline basic registration on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

All supplies for the registration are on hand, except the "A" cards and these were excepted to arrive either today or Monday.

Hours in County

County Supt. D. T. Mills said the centralized schools will be open from 3 p. m. through 9 p. m. each day. Classes will be dismissed shortly before 3 p. m.

The three city junior high schools, Central, Thomas A Edison and Vernon Heights, will be open the three days from 9.30 a. m. through 9 p. m.

Both Supt. E. E. Holt of the city schools and Mr. Mills urged that applicants go to the school in their district and that they have with them the necessary credentials for receiving a basic card—vehicle registration card and serial numbers of all tires.

Not at 1-Room Schools

Residents in the Reber, Lawrence and Campbell one-room school districts, may go either to the nearest centralized school or to the nearest city junior high school.

Elsewhere in tonight's edition, The Star carries a reproduction of the supplemental registration blank which will be issued during the basic registration to those drivers who request them.

Dates for the supplemental registration will be announced the first of the week, C. C. Holliday, executive secretary of the Marion county rationing board, said today.

LET CONTRACT FOR TRAILERS

300 To Be Built West of Lincoln Park Within 45 Days.

A contract for a 300-trailer suburban community just west of Lincoln park was awarded yesterday by the federal public housing authority, The Associated Press reported from Cleveland.

With this news came the announcement the project is to be completed in 45 days, which may mean that it may be occupied around the first of the year.

The job is to cost $83,187 and to be done by Hanagan Bros. Co. of Urbana. The contract covers all project expenses except furnishing and delivering the trailers.

The trailer community is set up as a war housing project and will consist of standard and expansible trailers adjacent to Lincoln park. Sanitary facilities and an infirmary-clinic trailer will be provided.

C. L. Sharpe, Cleveland regional director for FPHA, said bids are being received on another Marion project, either 500 single-family dwellings or a single housing unit. Arrangements to build 500 single-family dwellings at the east end of Fairground street on the Drake circus lot previously were announced by FPHA.

BRITISH BOMBERS AGAIN OVER GENOA

Many Large Fires Started; All Planes Return.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 14 — Home-based British bombers returned to the attack upon Italy's supply port of Genoa last night and started many large fires, the air ministry announced today.

Every plane returned from the hazardous, 1,500-mile round trip, which involves two crossings of the Alps.

"The weather over the target was good and many large fires were started," the air ministry said.

It was the second blow in a week at Genoa, Ligurian sea coast city 750 miles from England. The RAF smashed at Genoa in successive raids Friday and Saturday of last week to cripple the warehouses and transportation facilities serving the German-Italian desert troops of Marshal Erwin Rommel.

The night sweep followed a day in which allied fighters carried out offensive patrols over Nazi-occupied Holland and Brittany.

Two Erie Freight Trains in Collision at Warren

WARREN, O., Nov. 14—Two Erie freight trains collided head-on near the Erie station today, derailing nine cars and tearing up a section of track on the Cleveland-Youngstown route.

The locomotives remained on the tracks. The collision occurred at a point where double tracks become a single track.

FRENCH TO KEEP CONTROL IN AFRICA

U. S. Leaves Civil Rule in Darlan's Hands.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 14 — Allied forces appeared today to have turned over civilian administration in French North Africa entirely to French authorities, including Admiral Jean Darlan, once Vichy's commander of all armed forces, in order to leave themselves free for a swift move to oust the axis from Tunisia and Italian Libya.

Reliable quarters in London declared that Darlan's pro-American proclamation last night to the people of French North Africa undoubtedly was genuine and inspired by United States military authorities.

The Vichy radio—now Nazi controlled—broadcast a message today in which Marshal Petain was quoted as informing Darlan that his decision to resume responsibility for French interests in North Africa, with the approval of American authorities, was contrary to the Marshal's orders.

Darlan's statement had been accompanied by one from Gen. Auguste Nogues, whom Petain sent to North Africa Nov. 10 as his deputy. Nogues said he was appointed on the supposition that Darlan had been deprived of his freedom, but that he found this was not the case and was placing himself under Darlan's orders "in the name of the marshal."

NAVY REPORTS LOSSES TAKEN BY BOTH SIDES

800 Japanese Reported Killed in Land Action; Planes, Landing Craft Destroyed.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The navy reported today that a series of naval engagements was in progress in the Solomon Islands area and that "both the American and Japanese forces have suffered losses."

The actions began on the night of Nov. 12-13, (Solomons time)

A communique said that no details would be reported while the battle continues.

"To announce details of these actions while the battle is in progress would furnish the enemy with information of definite value to him," a communique said.

The communique pointedly used the term of "a series of naval engagements."

From this it appeared that no single outstanding battle had so far developed in the fighting, but that rather a number of scattered encounters had occurred between American and Japanese forces which have been trying for three months now to win domination of the waters around the strategic southeastern Solomons.

(Without confirmation elsewhere, Imperial Japanese headquarters in Tokyo announced today that two Japanese destroyers had been sunk and a battleship damaged in a fierce, still-continuing battle off Guadalcanal Island in which, it said, allied losses were six cruisers and a destroyer sunk and two cruisers and three destroyers heavily damaged.)

Preliminary to the general renewal of naval warfare between the surface forces of the belligerents was a bombardment, as reported by the navy yesterday, of enemy positions on Guadalcanal Island last Thursday.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Hard-hitting attacks on the Japanese ashore, at sea and in the air of the South Pacific continued today to cut away at enemy strength in the Solomons while in New Guinea allied and American ground forces moved forward, wiping out invasion-bent forces.

Two light cruisers and a transport damaged; 30 planes and 30 large landing boats destroyed; a number of shore batteries silenced; 700 to 800 officers and men killed—those are the enemy losses inflicted by America and allied troops as reported in communiques by Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur and the Navy last night.

Roaring down to within 1,000 feet of the foe, heavy bombers blasted the two light cruisers and set the 8,000-ton transports ablaze in a new attack in the Buin-Faisi area in the northern Solomons. A day earlier, the allied high command reported, bombers had struck at four troop-laden transports in the same area off Bougainville island.

The bombers also scored a near miss on a Japanese destroyer, and before they returned safely to their base blew gaping holes in the runways of the enemy's Kahili airdrome.

IN RICKENBACKER RESCUE DRAMA

Above at the right is Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, whose rescue from the sea announced today, added another to his many escapes from death during an adventurous life. At the left is Capt. William Cherry Jr., pilot of the Rickenbacker plane which went down in the South Pacific Oct. 23. The rescue of Capt. Cherry was announced yesterday. Both Rickenbacker and Cherry were picked up as they floated at sea on rubber life rafts such as the one shown in the artist's conception of the rescue, shown below.

Coldest Weather Of Season Hits State

By The Associated Press

The severest cold of the season gripped Ohio today, but some relief was in sight.

The lowest mark recorded was 15 at Toledo, the Columbus weather bureau reported, but it was 18 at Columbus and 19 at Dayton.

Meteorologist George W. Mindling predicted slowly rising temperatures today and tonight.

Cleveland recorded 20, Akron 22, Cincinnati 23.

The cold blew into Ohio yesterday on a high wind that whipped Lake Erie into a maze of waves that reached 40 feet.

'Teen Age Draft Bill Signed by President

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—President Roosevelt last night signed the 'teen-age draft bill, and in a statement said he had ordered a study with a view to enabling the 18 and 19-year-olds called to service to resume their schooling and training after the war.

The President also promised to announce soon a plan to utilize during the war the facilities of certain colleges and universities for training of a limited number of men for "highly specialized duties" in the armed forces.

RESCUED AFTER DRIFTING THREE WEEKS IN RAFT

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 — Dauntless Eddie Rickenbacker has been rescued, in good condition, the Navy announced today, three weeks after his airplane radioed that it was about out of gasoline and then vanished in the Pacific.

Rickenbacker, America's ace of aces in the first World war and the country's embodied proof that you can't keep a good man down, was picked from a raft bobbing in the sea by a Catalina flying boat along with two of his crew. They were 600 miles north of Samoa.

"Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, Colonel Hans C. Adamson and Private John F. Bartek, all of the United States Army who have been missing since Oct. 21 when the plane in which they were flying was forced down in the Pacific, have been rescued from the sea by a Navy Catalina flying boat," the Navy reported.

Sergeant Dies

"Captain Rickenbacker reported that Sergeant Alexander Czarmarczyk who was with them died several days ago and was buried at sea.

"Lieutenant James C. Whitaker, Lieutenant John J. De Angelis and Staff Sergeant James Reynolds, all of the United States Army who were also aboard the missing plane, have been located by a Catalina flying boat ashore on a small island in the South Pacific.

"With the rescue of Captain William T Cherry, United States Army, this makes all the personnel of the Rickenbacker party accounted for."

"Captain Rickenbacker and Colonel Adamson are reported in good condition, while Private Bartek, whose condition is reported serious, is nevertheless expected to recover."

"The second group consisting of Lieutenants Whitaker and De Angelis and Sergeant Reynolds are all alive but their condition is unknown. A United States naval medical officer has been flown to the island on which they are located. They will be returned to a naval base in the Pacific."

The rescue of Cherry was announced yesterday. The war department said that, although weakened by about three weeks exposure to sun and sea he was "in good condition."

Cherry was the pilot of the plane which was carrying Rickenbacker to the war zone for a survey of air force operations for Secretary of War Stimson.

The famous World war flier's party had been last heard from Oct. 21 when a radio message came through saying the plane had only about one hour's supply of gasoline.

Wide Area Covered

American ships and planes swept over hundreds and hundreds of square miles of the South Pacific looking for the little rubber boats or other evidences of the presence of the Rickenbacker party.

This was the second time in recent years that Rickenbacker, who shot down a score of German planes in France in the last great war, has encountered high adventure and great danger as a result of aerial mishap. Two years ago he survived the crash of an airliner near Atlanta, Ga., although among others among the passengers and crew at that time were killed. Rickenbacker was severely injured then.

Through the long days of waiting this time two persons typified America's hope that Rickenbacker would yet be saved.

His wife had said: "Eddie will turn up. He's too old a hand to get lost in any airplane now."

Stimson had commented that Rickenbacker was "an exception to ordinary rules."

This may have been the most spectacular of them all, but it is only one of many times that Rickenbacker has cheated death.

As a race track driver before the World war he turned over or hit fences time after time, but always came back undaunted. As a World war flier he was credited with shooting down 21 enemy planes and four balloons, winning virtually all the American and allied medals for heroism.

As president of eastern airlines, he had flown mostly as a passenger in recent years. He was on an airline inspection flight on Feb. 27, 1941 when the plane crashed near Atlanta, Ga., and his months-long flight back to health was followed by the nation.

Rickenbacker's wife issued the following statement from her New York home:

"I have just been advised by General H. H. Arnold of my husband's rescue. Of course the tension we all have been under began being relieved yesterday by the discovery of Capt. William T. Cherry Jr., pilot of the ship.

"As stated before, my belief in the resourcefulness of this wonderful group of men, to say nothing of the constant prayers of Eddie's thousands of admirers and friends, would make it possible for them to withstand the strain until the war department's thorough and efficient search brought about the ultimate rescue.

"I can't speak too highly of the wonderful cooperation of the Army and Navy and wish I could thank every one who participated personally. I have not a doubt in my mind about the wonderful reception given them by the men on that rubber raft when they were found."

Good News for Mother

At Indianapolis, Rickenbacker's brother Al said:

"It's wonderful news — beautiful news for mother to hear."

Rickenbacker's brother, William, Detroit garage-owner was overjoyed.

"He must have a rabbit's foot or something," said the brother. "It's just marvelous that they found him safe."

• • •

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's sister Mary said today:

"I'm asking everyone who shakes my hand this day to thank God with me."

This is Rickenbacker's home town, and it was a joyous city that heard the Navy's announcement that he had been rescued alive in the Pacific.

His two sisters, Mrs. Mary Pflaum and Mrs. Ralph Hansen, met shortly after word of Eddie's survival was received.

"We had never given up hope—particularly since one of his companions was found yesterday," Mrs. Pflaum said in the bedding section of a department store where she works. "God has taken care of him so far, he'll take care of him from here on."

Mrs. Pflaum's employers came around and told her how happy they were. They told her to take the day off.

Mrs. Pflaum left—for two hours.

MESSIAH REHEARSALS TO BEGIN THURSDAY

All Church Choirs in City Invited To Take Part.

Choirs of all churches in the city are invited to take part in the presentation of Handel's "Messiah" to be presented as a community Christmas season event at Marion on Monday evening, Dec. 21. Invitations have been sent to all pastors in the city to be read at the services tomorrow. Persons not affiliated with any choir and wishing to take part are invited to attend the rehearsal.

The first rehearsal will be held Thursday evening, Nov. 19, at Epworth Methodist church at 7 o'clock. It is the hope of the committee, headed by Mrs. Harold K. Mosier, that there will be a large turnout as the interest shown in the start of rehearsal will determine whether the oratorio will be given. The "Messiah" is written for a full chorus presentation and a large number of voices are necessary for the various parts. It is also necessary, the committee announces, that all persons planning to take part be present for the first rehearsal as practice must get under way immediately.

There is a particular need of men's voices for the oratorio and any one interested is asked to register with George Obern of Harding Highway E, phone 82-528 either before or at the time of the first rehearsal Thursday night.

L. O. Jones, supervisor of music in the public schools, will direct the chorus, and the oratorio will be presented in the Epworth church.

New Countywide Church Group To Organize Nov. 19

In order to be listed as a charter member of the new Marion county association of churches and to help in its organization, pastors should ask for a vote of their congregations on the matter Sunday if they have not done so already, Rev. E. M. Hertzler, temporary president of the organization, announced today.

Quotas of representative laymen are to be appointed for the first meeting of the association Nov. 19 at 8 p. m. in the assembly room of the Marion Y. M. C. A.

At this meeting an official name for the organization will be selected, a permanent organization will be formed with the election of officers and forming of an executive committee, steps will be taken for drawing up a constitution and by-laws and plans for projects to be taken up will be made.

Approximately 20 churches have taken favorable action regarding participation in the association of churches. Fourteen took part in a meeting Oct. 8 at which temporary officers to promote the organization were elected.

Ye Shall Be Witnesses

A SERMONETTE

By REV. J. RAPHAEL DALLAS

Pastor of Oakland Evangelical Church

• • •

Text—"And ye shall be witnesses unto Me."—Acts 1:8

• • •

THE greatest privilege and responsibility of all true Christians is to witness for the Christ. It would seem rude on the part of anyone to be ignorant that they are all in preparation of some kind to do the most that they can for Him. That is just given for attention. This same attitude holds good never for Christ has done wonderful things for us. The most natural thing at that we should make it known.

A witness is expected to tell of what he actually knows first hand. Hearsay or supposition or opinions will not stand. But what the witness knows he is to tell. Certainly that doesn't mean we are to tell all we know every time we speak, nor that one should tell the same thing to the same group over and over again. The disciples did testify to the life, and miracles, the death and resurrection of Jesus. "Wherefore we are witnesses." This includes the whole church and requires faithfulness for this is not a matter of idle curiosity. This has to do with foundations and construction work for the cause of Christ.

A good witness is one who talks openly and frankly and clearly what he has experienced. We must be willing. "Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power." Psalm 110:13. The reason for poor witnessing is the fact that there is such poverty in Christian experience. We count on Christ being ever with us, and so we should ever be faithful to Him.

ALL worthwhile witnessing is consistent. Our words and lives should balance each other.

Jesus was a faithful and true witness to us and for us. For Him we are to be the "light of the world" and "the salt of the earth." A good forester can tell at once whether a tree is sound by tapping on the bark. The world of folks about us is quite sure to discover that hollow sound in one whose life doesn't bear the same message as his lips. "He who is ashamed of Me before men, of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed before the Heavenly Father." And true also it is that the world will recognize, even in this sinful day, those whose lives really bear the impress of the Christ way. So may the life of every Christian professor be a true witness anywhere and under all circumstances. Amen.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

A SALUTE

So you think you have made sacrifices; have you equaled this one?

August McCullum, of Topeka, Kansas, proudly presented his Seeing Eye dog to the United States Army, in a genuine attempt to prove his patriotism.

Unable to serve actively himself, because of his blindness, Mr. McCullum offered his dog, confident that the service it would be capable of contributing would more than compensate for his loss.

Realizing that a complete readjustment would be necessary, since he would again be forced to rely upon his own resources, Mr. McCullum displayed supreme courage when he made his unselfish decision.

Only those who knew the complete trust, understanding and friendship shared by a blind master and his Seeing Eye dog, could realize why we humbly salute Mr. August McCullum for his magnificent contribution to his country.

Cong. Smith Speaks to House On High Court Wheat Penalty Decision

...rent Supreme Court de... the AAA 49-cent wheat ...pute was the subject ...comments to congress by ...man Frederick C. Smith ...ecording to a news ... Washington. Speak... ...gress Wednesday, Con... Smith said:

...s like to call the atten... ...ry member of the house to the decision which the Supreme Court has rendered in the 49-cent wheat penalty case.

If you read that decision, I am sure you will find it very interesting.

As was, of course, expected, the Court validated the 49-cent penalty, and thereby gave the highest legal sanction to the AAA's program of artificial restriction of food production.

Referring to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, the court says:

"The effect of the statute before us is to restrict the amount (of wheat) which may be produced for market."

For this frank statement the Court should be congratulated, for it puts to an end, once and for all, the false contention of the AAA officials that this program does not restrict farm production—that it does not operate to produce a scarcity of food. Since the act applies to wheat, it must apply to all farm products.

Here is the way the Court deals with the retroactive feature of the 49-cent wheat penalty. Remember, the law which provided the 49-cent penalty was passed May 26, 1941, and was made to apply to wheat planted in the fall of 1940.

It was contended by Mr. Roscoe C. Filburn, the farmer in the case who sought to restrain the government from collecting the penalty on his so-called excess wheat, that since his wheat had been sown the year before, the act of May 26, 1941, was retroactive and, therefore, not valid.

Says the Court:

"The penalty is incurred and becomes due on threshing. Thus the penalty was contingent upon the act which the appellee (the guilty farmer) committed not before but after the enactment of the statute, and had he chosen to cut his excess and cure it or to reap and feed it with the head and straw together, no penalty would have been demanded. Such manner of consumption is not uncommon. Only when he threshed and thereby made it a part of the bulk of wheat overhanging the market did he become subject to the penalty."

So the Supreme Court has ruled that a farmer who planted so-called excess acreage of wheat was not guilty of violating the AAA law, but he only became guilty if he threshed the excess wheat.

The Court intimates he had plenty of time to keep himself out of the hands of the law from the time the 49-cent penalty clause was enacted, or the so-called wheat-quota referendum was held, which was May 31, 1941, and the day of threshing.

To avoid the penalty he could have mowed down his excess any time between May 31 and the complete ripening of the wheat and fed it as he pleased.

He could even have allowed it to ripen, reaped, and shocked it and fed it in this form and so avoided being penalized.

Just so the farmer fed the excess wheat "head and straw together" the was all right and no law was broken. But the moment he separated the little grains of wheat from the chaff he broke the law and had to pay for his misdeed.

Presumably the farmer could have evaded the penalty if he had plowed under his excess, or burned it.

It would seem the Supreme Court's decision gives legal sanction to the act of the Michigan farmer who burned his wheat to avoid paying a penalty.

This court ruling should be of the greatest concern to all. We are in war, and are already facing an absolute and serious food shortage.

On a population basis, according to data supplied by the Agricultural Department, the United States now has 25 per cent less hogs and cattle than it had in 1917 when we entered the other war. That data unmistakably shows this shortage has been caused by the operation of the AAA.

Yet in the face of this ominous situation created wholly by the Triple A, farmers are being fined for raising food. But did not Thomas Jeferson give us warning of what would happen if the time ever came that the politicians and bureaucrats in Washington ran our farms?

Here is what he said:

"Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap we should soon want bread."

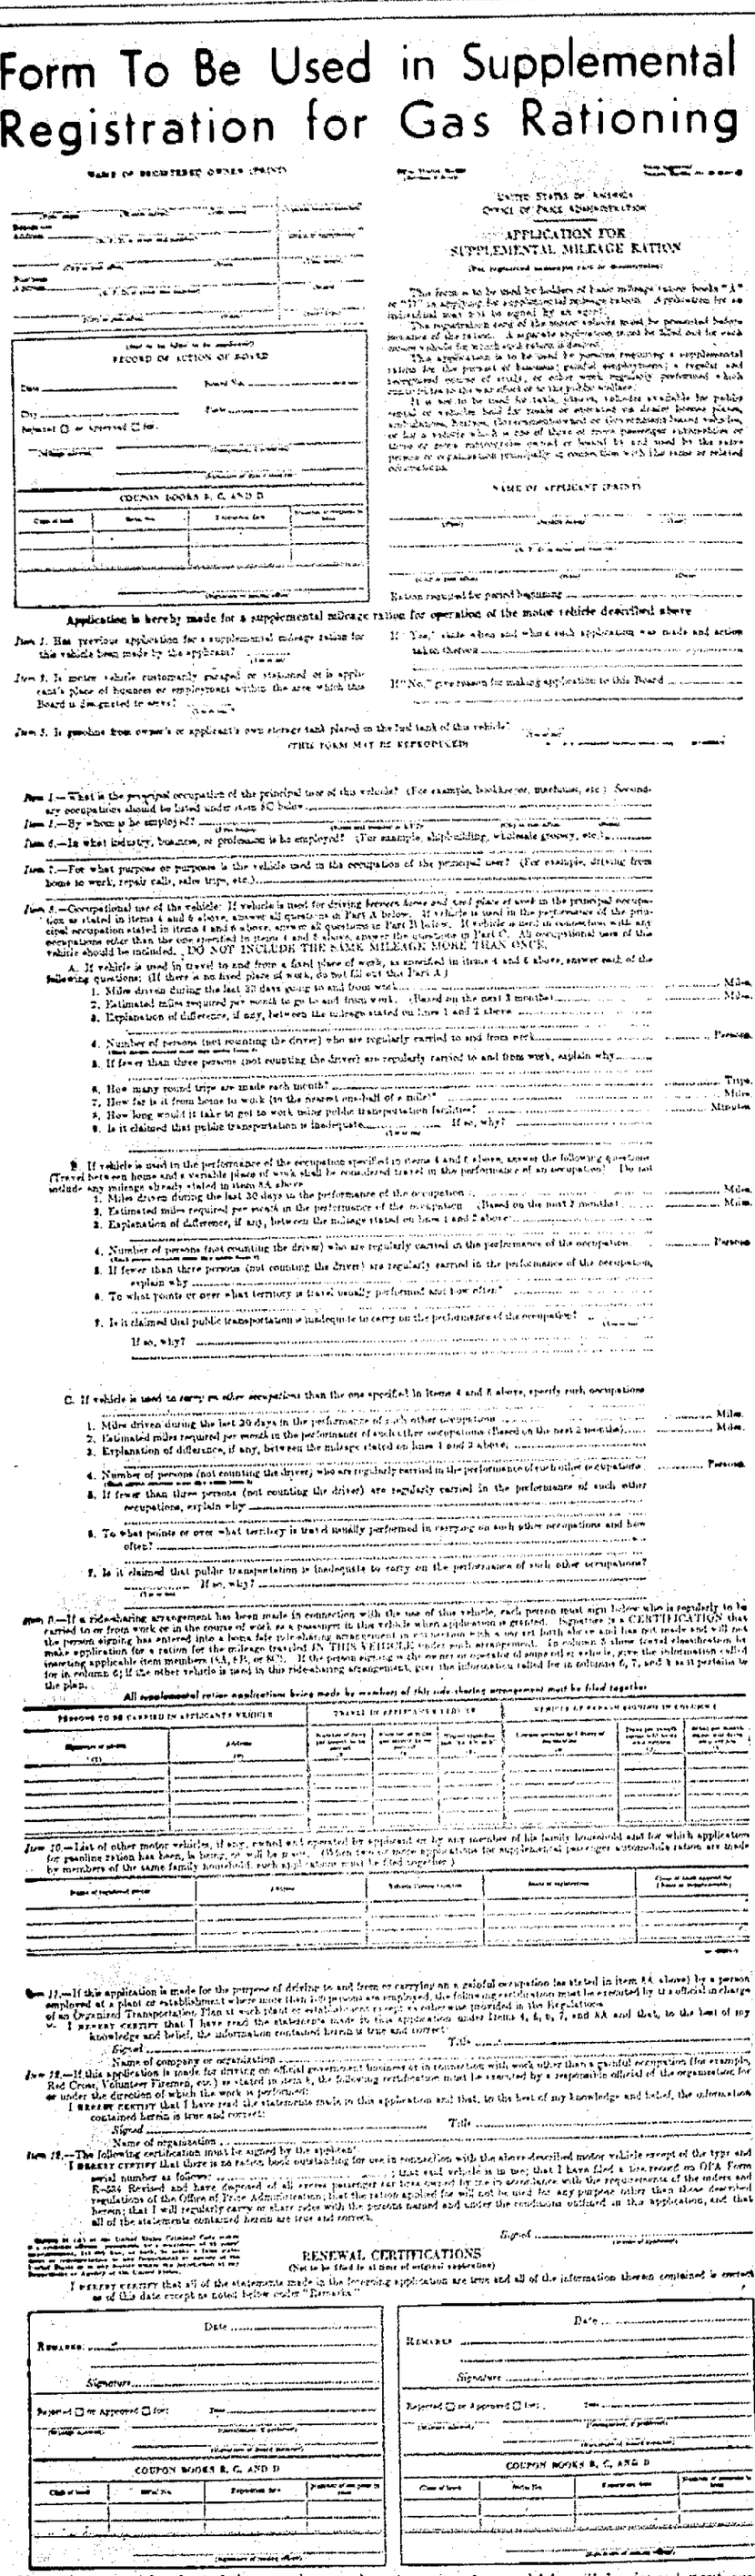
Form To Be Used in Supplemental Registration for Gas Rationing



Above is a reproduction of the supplemental registration form which will be issued next week to passenger car and motorcycle owners in the mid-west and west who make application for more than the basic ration of gasoline.

Motorists may ask for supplemental blanks next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday throughout Ohio, the three days set for the basic registration.

In Marion county the basic registration will be conducted in the city's three junior high schools and in the county's centralized schools. All persons must have a basic card before the supplemental blank will be issued.

For the supplemental cards, "B" for occupational travel up to 470 miles a month, and "C" for over 470 miles, the applicant must show: 1. A participation in a good faith ride-sharing arrangement with three or more persons, all of whom must sign the application. 2. That such ride-sharing is not feasible and there are no reasonably adequate means of transportation.

Newspapers Allowed More Zinc for Pictures

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Increased use of zinc by newspapers, photo-engravers and others using zinc plates in printing has been authorized by the war production board for the three months beginning Nov. 15. The order permits use of 75 per cent of the amount required in the corresponding period a year ago. A reduction to 50 per cent of last year's needs will become effective again after Feb. 15, the WPB said.

Factories in Area Yield 1,000 Tons Of Scrap Metal

More than 1,000 tons of scrap metal were turned back in to the war effort by factories in Marion, Morrow and Wyandot counties during October—one of the biggest yields for these industries to date—the monthly report of C. O. Bryson, chairman of the Marion Bureau of Industrial Conservation, showed today.

The report covers 81 industries in those counties and was made to the regional war production board office in Cleveland, which is calling on industries throughout the nation to help keep scrap metal flowing into war plants.

The October report totals 2,335,758 pounds of metal including 2,489,579 pounds of iron and steel, 109 pounds of copper, 26,303 pounds of brass, 134 pounds of aluminum, 9,170 pounds of cast, 412 pounds of rubber and 31 pounds of babbitt.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Nov. 15

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not a very propitious one, as the ruling figures are found in adverse positions, especially in the domestic, affectional or social affiliations, which indicate inharmonious conditions generally if not more active forms of friction or unhappiness. It is probable that relations with group, community or public may not be constructive. It would be well to refine to religious environs, where spiritual and physical health abound.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of inactivity and indifferent success, in both their business and private affairs. But little headway would be gained in public, community or group interests, and in social, domestic or affectional life it may be necessary to safeguard happiness and peace of mind and health.

A child born on this day should be of a neutral or inoffensive character, with but moderate success or ability, but prone to get into involved situations with its friends and associates in both business and social or affectional relations.

For Monday, Nov. 16

MONDAY'S astrological augury is for a particularly lively and enterprising day, with all things moving under high tempo and toward ambitious goals. Nevertheless this may not all be plain sailing since there are signs of all sorts of postponements, delays, obstacles and opposition from elders, employers and also strangers or "busybodies." Maintain poise, harmony and unity and all should be well, and there is bound to be happiness in social and affectional relations.

Those whose birthday it is may plan for a very lively year with much energy, initiative and enterprise in inaugurating new objectives. This despite the opposition of elders, as well as employers and strangers. Obstacles and antagonisms should melt away before poise, good will, harmony and finesse. The private life should likewise bring happiness and accomplishment.

A child born on this day should be energetic, brave and constructive despite reversals and opposition. It should have a happy and successful life.

Republicans To Hear District Judge-Elect

Walter S. Jackson of Lima, successful candidate for judge of the court of appeals in the recent election, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Marion County Republican Central committee, executive committee and Young Republican club, Monday night at 8 in party headquarters at 134½ East Center street.

All precinct workers and interested persons have been invited to attend.

A report of expenditures and balances in connection with the recent election will be given by Alfred Donithen, treasurer of the executive committee.

Foreman of Star Pressroom Injured

Robert Roush of 640 North Prospect street, pressroom foreman for The Star, suffered mashed toes on his left foot in an accident about 2 p. m. yesterday in his office.

The accident occurred when two ink rollers, weighing about 51 pounds, fell across his foot.

The physician to whose office he was taken said no bones were broken but that the flesh of the great and first toes was badly mashed and the second toes were less severely hurt.

Paris Radio Reports Attack on Gen. Giraud

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Nov. 14—The Paris radio reported today that an unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday morning on the life of Gen. Henri Giraud, veteran French officer who has allied himself with the American and British forces in Algiers.

Giraud was not injured, the broadcast said.

According to the Paris radio, which is controlled by the Germans, the attempt on Giraud's life was made by two young French naval officers who fired on him with their revolvers after denouncing him as a traitor.

Both shots missed their mark, the broadcaster said, and the officers were disarmed by persons nearby and "immediately shot by Americans."

New Trio To Play on Sunday Program

A newly formed string trio composed of Miss Esther Van Bockern, cellist, Mrs. J. C. McKillop, violinist, and Mrs. Lewis Wells, pianist, will play on the "Marion Entertains" program Sunday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock over WMRN.

All three members of the trio are also members of the Marion Lecture-Recital club. Miss Van Bockern, a newcomer to Marion, received her bachelor's degree from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and her master of sacred music degree from the Southwestern Theological Seminary at Ft. Worth, Tex. Last summer she was a member of a trio which presented concerts throughout Kentucky and made numerous broadcasts. The trio played several of Miss Van Bockern's own compositions.

The program Sunday will consist of "Serenade," Widor; "Melody in D," T. B. Williams; "Au Soir" and "The Rosary," Nevin.

Harold Bradt, soloist, will be accompanied by Mrs. Victor E. Dornbusch.

MURDER on the Campus

By JERRY BRONDFIELD

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

The Offer

TODD and Hazen walked out of the stadium together to Hazen's car. Most of the traffic had melted away by then and they had little difficulty.

"I'll come straight to the point," Hazen said bluntly. "You know I'm an engineer, I presume. Well, I'm taking over a tremendous project down in South America next June. It's big. Really big," he emphasized. "We're going to have a small army of men working down there—Americans and natives mixed. Maybe four or five thousand, and about 20 per cent of them aren't going to have [illegible] with them.

"Those men are going to need planned security to help keep 'em happy and there's where you come in," Hazen went on. "I want you to come down there when you graduate and set up and direct an athletic program for those men. In addition you'll be sort of an administrative assistant to me. You'll be doing me a great service, and what's more you'll be doing those men and your country an even greater service."

"I can start you at fifty a week and all your expenses. I hope you'll find that satisfactory," said Hazen, "because you're the man I want."

Finally Todd said, "South America—why I don't know—it seems like a swell opportunity, but—"

"But what?"

"Why do you want me?" Todd asked him simply.

Hazen kept his eyes on the street ahead. "I know exactly what's in the back of your mind," he said easily, "so I'll put you straight right away. I know everything about you that I need to know, including a little unpleasantness you've had lately. I think I'd have picked you anyway, but it happens I went to Pete Bailey and I told him I wanted a State athlete to do this job for me and asked him to recommend a man. You were it."

It was a little too much for Todd to think about then and there. He was a little bewildered. "I'll have to give it some thought, Mr. Hazen. I just don't know. I was considering the air force."

"Of course," Hazen said. "Take your time. Give you a month."

Jeepers!

Eddie was all excited when Todd told him about Hazen's offer. "Jeepers it's wonderful!" Eddie said. "You're sunk to take it, of course. You can't afford not to. Not because of the money, but think of the experience, the opportunities it presents."

There was an unintended look on Todd's face. "It sounds swell," he admitted. "Wish I knew. Maybe I might to write Dad. He might have an angle on it. Also—I thought we were going to join the air corps together after graduation."

Eddie made an impatient gesture. "Sure we were, but don't you realize you'll actually be doing as much down there as you could in the air force. Look it squarely in the face."

"I've got a month to make up my mind. I'll probably change it twelve times in those 30 days."

On second thought, Todd figured, maybe this was the opportunity he was looking for. Maybe if he took the job he could get Hazen to advance him part of his salary—say a half year's—that would be at least $1500. That was half the amount Duke needed. It was a possibility.

Susan found out about Todd's offer on a fast double play—Luttrell to June to Drake.

Somehow, Susan knew she was supposed to form some kind of opinion—her private opinion—but an opinion nevertheless. But every time she caught herself thinking about it she stopped short of the complete answer.

If Todd Malone wanted to go to South America he could go.

If he wanted to join the air force he could join.

If he wanted to take a rocket trip to the moon, he could.

In other words she told herself she didn't intend to let herself become involved in even a remote manner. If he should come to her and ask for an idea she'd be glad to give it to him, but Susan wasn't counting on seeing him.

He had made up his mind and that was that. The more she thought of his wooden-headedness the more she thought he should go to South America and get himself lost in some nice impenetrable jungle.

The Small Glass Bottle

The next day Susan got a phone call from the manager of Varsity Hall, the bachelor quarters where Phil Humphries had lived. There was a book with her name in it, and a picture of herself which had been among Phil's effect. If she cared to get it back she could drop by and pick them up at the desk.

Susan didn't particularly care to get the picture but she remembered she had loaned Phil a volume of modern poetry that she would like to have. She walked over after her last class. The manager wasn't there but the housekeeper was. The housekeeper, a stocky, pleasant woman named Mrs. Woods got the book out of a cupboard.

"It was such a shame about poor Mr. Humphries," she said, handing the book to Susan. "He was always so pleasant, always had a word and a smile for me. He was a devilish one, too," she added.

"Do you know," she confided, "I was bringing him some fruit I'd put in his room and he'd just come home after drinking a bottle or two. He liked the stuff, Mr. Humphries did. Anyway, he'd always have his joke with me. He took up a tiny [illegible] bottle of some green medicine stuff from his drawer and said if he ever dropped it the whole house would be blown higher than a kite."

Mrs. Woods shook her head. "He had me scared for a minute, the way he handled that thing and then I knew he must be having one of his jokes."

Susan smiled grimly. Phil was always full of jokes. Especially when he'd had a few drinks. Like that night in Tony's when he touched off the news about Todd's father.

Susan thanked Mrs. Woods, put the book under her arm and walked out.

4 Out of Every 5 Adults Buy War Bonds or Stamps

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 14—Although the government war bond and stamps sales program is producing nearly a billion dollars a month it still has yet to sell about one in every five adults.

Here is the question which Institute field reporters put to a cross-section of the voting population to discover how extensively bond purchases have been made:

"Do you happen to have bought any war bonds or stamps?"

The replies:

Yes	78%
No	22

While the Institute's findings are splendid testimony to the effectiveness of the Treasury Department's bond and stamp campaign, it is also interesting to examine at this time the question of what groups have not bought any bonds, almost a year after our entrance into the war.

Two Groups Lag

The two great segments which have lagged in their purchase of war bonds and stamps are the lower economic groups and the farmers. Following is a table comparing the purchases by the various groups:

	Have Bought	Have Not Bought
Middle Income and well-to-do	90%	10%
Lower Income group	68	32
Farm	71	29
Cities (10,000 pop. or over)	81	19

Sales among the lower income brackets are expected to be lower than those in the middle and upper brackets, since some, while earning no more money than they did last year, are faced with high living costs.

The farmers, however, present a somewhat different problem. It is possible that they have failed to keep up with their city brothers because the intensive bond and stamp campaigns have been concentrated in the urban areas. Furthermore, payroll deduction plans and immediate bond and stamp booths offer the city residents many more opportunities to make purchases.

White Collar People Lead

A breakdown of the bond purchases by occupations reveals that the professional man, the business man, and the white collar worker are well ahead of other occupational groups in their bond and stamp buying.

Here is the comparison by occupations:

	Have Bought	Have Not Bought
Professional	92%	8%
Businessmen	88	12
White Collar Workers	88	12
Skilled and Semi-Skilled	78	22
Unskilled and Service Workers	65	35

Furthermore, some sections of the country are far better bond and stamp buyers than the others. The East Central section, comprising Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan is highest on the list, in the relative proportion who have bought bonds or stamps, 81 per cent of the voting adults having bought bonds in this area. The New England, Middle Atlantic and West Central areas are next, with 79 per cent holding bonds or stamps. Next comes the mountain area and the far West, with 78 per cent. The South stands lowest in the sectional groupings, with 66 per cent of the voting population having bought bonds and stamps.

Jeffers on Watch for Tire Violators

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Violators of the nation's tire and gasoline rules take heed: "Rubber Czar" William M. Jeffers is "in the mood to make an example of a lot of people."

Predicting trouble for those who failed to obey regulations, the war-time boss of the nation's tires told the Association of National Advertisers last night a good rule was:

"Don't drive that car unless it's necessary to drive it."

Criticizing those who exceeded the 35-mile speed limit or evaded gasoline regulations and those ration book holders whose cars were seen at race tracks, Jeffers said: "If they don't play the game, look out!"

This Is Your Fight

What You Can Do To Help Win It

This is the last in a series of 12 articles prepared by The Star to explain how YOU can help speed victory for the United Nations.

—Your Morale—

THE first secret of morale in wartime is to be doing something useful. The next most important thing is to be sure in your own mind what the war's about.

Morale is simply the way you feel about what you're doing—good, bad or indifferent. Either you think the United States will win and are working cheerfully to hasten the victory, or you're just so much dead weight holding back the nation's war effort.

Fortunately, there is nothing wrong with morale that a little straight thinking can't cure. On the whole, morale is conspicuously good. But it needs to be better in order to give the war effort that extra punch which Russia and France didn't have.

Morale, by itself, never killed or saved anyone in war, but it is one of the indispensable ingredients of a winning combination.

Americans who believe the United States must and will win the war are making a full contribution to the war effort whether they are in the fighting forces, in factories, sitting at desks or doing housework. When everybody is making a full contribution, the country's maximum strength will be reached—and it will be great enough to bring victory.

We must have confidence in ourselves. We must be able to face the fact of our blunders and shortcomings and keep right on doing our best. We must keep everlastingly at the jobs that need to be done and we must understand why they need to be done.

This is a struggle to determine how human beings shall live in the years to come, whether they shall be subject to the strong-arm rules of the "stick-'em-up-or-get-shot" nations, or shall be guided by a "live and let live" philosophy.

Americans are in this fight to preserve tolerance for themselves and their children against the threat of the brutalitarians who have seized control of the Axis countries. "Live and let live" is worth fighting for. It is mankind's last best hope.

If you can look forward to victory and a better world to come afterward; if you can face the facts and still believe in the vision of a world free from despotism; if you are doing your best for the thing you believe is as an American, there's nothing wrong with your morale.

If, on the other hand, you're mixed up, if you're a constant grumbler, if you can't graduate from the arguing state into the acting stage of the war, if you're paralyzed with hates, prejudices and suspicions, or if all the war means to you is a chance to grind your own ax or perhaps interference with your ax-grinding—look out! Your morale is bad.

You need to get busy at something useful in the war effort. You need to do some straight thinking. You need to make up your mind about what is worth fighting for. When you've done these things, your morale will be all right, too.

Letter Carriers' Group Prepares for Election

The auxiliary to the Marion Branch of the National Letter Carriers association met Thursday night with Mrs. Clarence Fail of the Richland road.

Nomination of officers was conducted. The election will be conducted at the next meeting, Dec. 10, at which there will be a Christmas exchange. Mrs. John Sloan and Mrs. Ralph Bigley were given birthday gifts by their secret sisters. Contest awards went to Mrs. John Merchant and Mrs. V. E. Goff. Mrs. Fail was assisted in serving refreshments by her daughter, Betty.

TWO OHIO NAVY FLIERS WIN HEROISM AWARDS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—The decoration of 18 navy airmen in the battles of the Coral sea and Midway was announced today by Secretary of the Navy Knox in the award of decorations.

Seven officers, six of them listed as missing in action, were given the navy cross for extraordinary heroism and nine enlisted men who were rear-seat gunners in the Coral sea engagement received the distinguished flying cross for "extraordinary achievement in aerial combat."

Among those awarded the navy cross were:

Lieutenant (jg) Osborne B. Wiseman, of Zanesville O., missing in action, for persistent and vigorous attacks against the Japanese invasion fleet at Midway, "defying extreme danger from a concentrated barrage of anti-aircraft fire and fierce fighter opposition."

Ensign Davis Elliott Chaffee of Sandusky O., missing in action. For participation in an attack, against heavy anti-aircraft fire and powerful fighter opposition, which resulted in sinking or damaging severely a Japanese aircraft carrier in the Coral sea.

Here's Our Christmas Lay-Away Suggestion
This Year . .
Lay Away WAR BONDS
Our suggestions in years past have always been the giving of practical gifts. We are not changing them now; but where in former years and will again in later years, we have urged the purchase of labor-saving electrical appliances—this year we suggest War Bonds. The reasons are apparent to everyone. Neither our armed forces nor our government are asking for gifts. They simply want to borrow your money to be used in the making of Planes, Tanks, Guns, Ships for winning a Victory.
Regardless of when Victory is won it will be the greatest gift possible and every Bond buyer can have the satisfaction of having helped present it to himself.

Hitler Beaten at His Own Game

ADOLF Hitler wasting no more time with the myth of sovereignty in unoccupied France. The Vichy "government" simply is brushed aside; its usefulness is ended. The conqueror of France must now defend it—all of it.

Hitler's most urgent need is to counter the blow being prepared for him in Africa. He has lost the advantage this time of striking first while the opposition was looking the other way. The African move by the United States, following Britain's successful drive in Egypt, caught Hitler napping.

This time the too-little-too-late curse hangs over his head, instead.

Unoccupied France was supposed to block the way to the German frontier. For more than two years Hitler sought to fool his enemies with the myth of French sovereignty and the possibility of French resistance to their armed force. The game was played so well that almost everybody was misled, but chiefly Hitler, himself. It is plain now that by pretending to believe in the myth of French sovereignty the United States outwitted Hitler at his own game. When he realized that United States troops were "violating French neutrality" by landing in France's African territory, it was too late to stop them. There remained nothing to do but abandon the pretext and occupy the remainder of France in preparation for the invasion he hoped to forestall.

Our Man-Hour Shortage

THE senate committee investigating the war program has gone to the mat with the problem of the man-hour shortage, which is an important part of the larger program of a manpower shortage.

In a report dealing with manpower, the committee proposes lengthening the basic work week to 48 hours, from its present legal limit of 40 hours under the fair labor standards act. It also recommends that the overtime wages now contributing to the threat of inflation be paid in government securities cashable only at the end of the war.

The problem here is not that of labor's hard-won gains, though the gains must be preserved for the long pull. It is the problem of increasing the man-hours needed for the war effort. Part of the solution, in addition to getting more workers, is to get more work out of workers already available.

A Brookings Institution survey has recommended that an average of at least 46 hours a week be maintained during 1943, instead of the present average of less than 43 hours. It makes no recommendation about suspending the 40-hour week as a wage basis, but merely shows why it is desirable to overcome the effect of that provision.

The matter of suspending the 40-hour restriction is an argument about cost; many workers already are working more than 40 hours at overtime rates, though the general effect of the short week is to keep hours within the limit to avoid payment of extra rates. The Brookings Institution reports that while output per hour begins to decline around 45 or 46 hours, the total output continues to expand and declares that to produce what is needed in 1943 under existing schedules it might be necessary to go as high as a 50-hour week.

The proper standard is relative, not absolute. To increase employment, a 40-hour week was proper. To increase production, it seems plain that a longer week is essential.

Frenchmen Fight for Liberty

IT IS impossible for Americans to understand why any Frenchman should have fought for the preservation of his Nazi chains. Most Frenchmen fight only for liberty.

The truth is that all Frenchmen fight only for liberty. The men who fight for Hitler in the guise of Frenchmen are Nazis. They have lost their right to be called Frenchmen.

Their allegiance is owed to a man, not to a nation. They are followers of Hitler, subjects of his whims, traitors to everything else. They are the Quislings of Norway, the Lavals and all the traitorous men who have fallen so far below the dignity of their kind that they can profess loyalty to a man like Adolf Hitler.

Perhaps the Russians, who refer only to Hitlerites and Fascists, never to Germans, have made the necessary distinction to clarify the real issue in the European war.

Today and Tomorrow

Fault Found with Idea That U. S. Is Fighting Only a Naval War with Japan.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

REPRESENTATIVE MAAS, the senior Republican member of the house naval affairs committee, has made a very serious attack upon the conduct of the war in the Pacific. Mr. Maas says that from Pearl Harbor to the Solomons the Pacific war has been badly managed, and that the heavy consequences of the bad management have been concealed by false publicity.

Unfortunately, Mr. Maas himself is a passionate advocate rather than a critic of the basic misconception which is at the bottom of the whole trouble.

The misconception is the belief of the high admirals that the Pacific war is, as Gen. MacArthur was indiscreet enough to say, a "navy show"—that it is a duel between the Japanese navy and the American navy, and that the war in Europe and the war in continental Asia are secondary and distracting sideshows, and that the army and the air corps are mere auxiliaries to the navy.

This strategical error set the stage for the disaster at Pearl Harbor; it is the standing obstruction to unity of command and the concentration of forces. It is the cause of the unseemly rivalry of the services; it led to the campaign in the Solomons which was launched without a correct estimate of or due regard for the size of the commitment, and it now threatens to become a cancer upon our whole war effort.

Situation On Dec. 7

In the initial disaster of Dec. 7 the navy had its battle fleet concentrated in Pearl Harbor to rest the crews before starting out, when the expected war was declared, on a great sweep westward to attack the Japanese navy.

The reason why Hawaii was not alert on that Sunday morning was that the high command thought the Japanese would be foolish enough to attack Singapore first, leaving the powerful American fleet free on its flank to attack, when it suited us. The premise of this reasoning was the ancient theory that our navy was so much better than the Japanese that they must avoid an engagement.

The disaster at Pearl Harbor would, we might suppose, have led not merely to the removal of a few scapegoats but to a reconsideration of the navy's doctrine. But time has shown that though there were minor changes in personnel, there was no real change of mind on the fundamental thesis that the war with Japan is a duel between the two navies. Even today the navy has not accepted the view that the Japanese war should be fought as a combined operation by the United Nations, and as soon as the naval losses suffered at Pearl Harbor had been made up the navy went back to its old idea of fighting the Pacific campaign as an isolated naval war with the Japanese navy.

That is why the Solomons campaign became a navy show only loosely and inadequately connected with MacArthur's command in Australia. And that is why the Navy involved itself and the country in an operation of which it had not estimated the force needed or clearly defined the objective. And this was done at the very moment—namely, the beginning of August—when the great African offensive was being mounted. And so costly did it prove to be that it threatened to make impossible the African expedition and is still a threat to full and effective exploitation of our position in Africa.

Two explanations which are not easily reconciled have been advanced for the Solomons campaign. One is defensive, that if we had not landed the marines at Guadalcanal, the Japanese would have used the airfield as a jumping-off place to attack our communications with Australia. But if the object of the campaign was to defend Australia, what are we to make of the fact that Gen. MacArthur, who is generalissimo for the defense of Australia, is not in command?

Offensive Action?

The other reason advanced is that the operation is offensive, the beginning of that process, long embodied in our navy's doctrine, of reconquering island by island what the Japanese have seized. If that was the purpose, then what are we to make of the fact that this grandiose campaign was launched at a time when all our Allies, and we ourselves as well, were engaged on the other side of the world? Is that the way to conduct a global war, by committing ourselves with inadequate forces to a separate campaign against the whole force of a principal enemy?

Mr. Maas, in the very act of criticizing the conduct of the operations, has swallowed without critical examination the ideas which have distorted the strategical conduct of the Pacific war. "It will make little difference in the end," he said, "who wins in Europe, we or Hitler, if the Japs win in the Pacific, for in 20 to 30 years a billion and a half Orientals industrialized, organized and mobilized by Japan, will overrun a war-devastated Europe, and finally, America too."

The answer is that it makes all of the difference in the world who wins in Europe. For if we do not win in Europe, the Japanese are sure to win in the Pacific. If we do not win in Europe, Japan is free of all fear of Russia in Siberia and of Britain from India and of the attack by China and from China which depends upon the reconquest of Burma and the reopening of the Burma Road.

Moreover, if we do not win in Europe we shall be fighting for the defense of the Western Hemisphere against the advance of the Axis from Africa against South America and from France, England and Norway against the approaches to North America.

Aviation To the Rescue

WHILE aviation's role in freight handling continues to be spoken of as a future possibility, airplanes already are active in that field. The army's air transport command is flying strategic goods on return trips to the United States, and so is the Navy's transport service.

Their job is being expedited by the bureau of economic warfare, which has branches all over the world. BEW is seeing to it that essential materials are on hand at available air stations reached by military transport planes.

A summary in Business Week describes a typical station in the Far East, where scarce metals are assembled from scattered points in China for air transport to the United States. Military transport services reach many points where commercial air lines have no connections.

"China National Aviation (Pan-American Airways) carries bristles, tungsten, silk and tin to airports in China from where they are taken to the United States by Army and Navy plane," says Business Week. "In eight weeks, 220 tons of these items were moved from China to India. Later on, 98 tons tungsten were flown out in 10 days."

The military transport services now comprise several hundred planes. The army took over half the domestic airlines fleet of 350, which were added to its existing fleet of nearly 100, and since then the aircraft plants have been delivering planes at an unrevealed but increasing rate. The transport building program of the Army, through 1944, is for more than 10,000 planes, including a large number of the four engined type.

"Rubber," declares Business Week, "is not as important on the air freight list as you might think. We are drawing upon our stockpile of crude, and surface ships are fast enough for delivery from foreign parts. We are still getting rubber out of places in the east by means the Japanese are powerless to stop.

"Aviation is taking on the job of getting rubber out of South American jungles. Planes are taking crews and supplies into remote camps, from which native spotters and trail cutters reach individual trees.

"Strictly for war, but with post-war angles, research men in California are trying to increase the loading of plane cargo by 33 per cent. Studies of 100,000 air shipments indicate that air cargo runs as high as 40 per cent excess weight and 5 per cent excess volume, both due to inadequate packaging; that there is a further loading loss of 10 per cent.

Professors Make Hay

By The Associated Press

GOODWELL, Okla.—The professors were proud of the hay crop because they could remember when raising hay out here in the dust bowl was like trying to raise corn on concrete. So they went in a body to see Panhandle A. and M. College's hay crop being baled and put in barns. That night rain threatened. E. L. Morrison, president of the college, called for volunteers to save the hay for alma mater. And the professors, many of whom had wrestled nothing heavier than verbs and historical dates for years, toiled until 2:30 a. m. until all the hay was cut, baled and saved for dear old Panhandle.

Good Samaritans

SEATTLE, WASH. — Johnny Sams is going to live, the doctors say, and 22 strangers are going about their work happier because of it.

Sams, his wife and two-year-old son, were living in a temporary tent home while he worked at his defense job and Mrs. Sams tried to find a better place to live. One night their gasoline stove exploded. "Sammy" was badly burned.

Doctors said he needed many transfusions. They published an appeal in the newspaper.

That day, 22 people came to offer their blood for the stranger who had come from Alaska to do war work.

We must discard the idea that past routines, past ways of doing things, are probably the best ways; on the contrary, we must instead assume that there is probably a better way to do almost everything.—(Donald M. Nelson)

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

It was Monday, Nov. 14, 1932.

More than 150 workers from the Marion Welfare association launched a drive for $31,000 to provide for the aid of the city's needy.

A commission named by Gov White to study unemployment insurance advocated such protection for Ohio workers in a report to the governor, urging it as a method of forestalling suffering in future industrial slack periods.

Savings estimated at $6,200 in the next 14 months were effected by city council in a resolution authorizing Service Director E. O. Uncapher to enter into contracts with the C., D. & M. Electric Co. for a reduction in street lighting rates and with the Eagles lodge to decrease the rent for city offices.

The Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. Herman Rhu on Bellefontaine avenue with Mrs. Chester C. Roberts, Mrs. George B. Scofield and Mrs. Carl W. Sawyer taking part in the program.

City School Superintendent George A. Bowman called attention of the school board to a serious financial problem reporting that tax income for 1932 to date had been $84,067 below estimates.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

It was Tuesday, Nov. 14, 1922.

William W. Stout of Preston avenue, a freight conductor for the Erie railroad, suffered a fracture of his right arm in a mishap while switching cars in the Galion yards.

Mrs. Caroline Plack of Galion was visiting her daughters, Mrs. S. B. Nixon and Miss Plack of Nunin court.

Marine Pets

By International News Service

TRINIDAD, B. W. I. — Eight "Leathernecks" living at the U. S. Marine barracks here haven't turned in a day's work since they joined the Marine Corps several months ago, but no one seems to mind.

The happy-go-lucky "gold bricks" are pets, the most popular of them being Gadget, a nondescript white mongrel adopted by Corp. Charles A. Caldwell of Franklin, Tenn., and Brownie, whose ancestors are believed to have been brought to Trinidad by the Spaniards of old. Brownie's master is First Sgt. A. A. Rocheleau of Boston.

Gadget became the local Marine Corps camp's hero last August when he was credited with leading two Marines back to the local barracks after they had become lost in the nearby jungle. Gadget had accompanied the Leathernecks on a hike.

Other pets adopted by Marines here are a sleek, black cat which became a ward of the Marine detachment when its owner was transferred several months ago, three nameless ducks owned by Pl. Sgt. Melvin Trotter of Greenville, S. C., a chicken, a rooster, several monkeys, a parrot, a goat and a few snakes.

Writer Spends 10 Days with Them, Finds They're Fighters.

By THOBURN WIANT
Wide World Features Writer

CAIRO, Nov. 14 — Ten days of flying, eating and sleeping with American fliers in the western desert have made me fairly glow with patriotism.

I am prouder than ever that I'm an American after seeing our boys and what they are doing. They are flying medium bombers which are blasting enemy troop concentrations, motor transport, tanks and airports, thereby enabling the Allied ground forces to advance toward the west. They are flying fighter planes which protect bomber missions that are scoring terrific records in the destruction of enemy planes.

Talk Of The Desert

Their achievements are the talk of the western desert, yet they are modest and reluctant to talk about what they have done. They prefer to listen to swing records such as Bing Crosby singing, "I'll See You in My Dreams" or Dinah Shore crooning "I Wanna Go Where You Are."

All are young; their average age is 23. Col. Curtis Low, of Needham Heights, Mass., executive officer of the bomber outfit with which I spent several days, is 30 years old.

The men swear by him. As an operations officer, Col. Low is entitled to stay behind the lines and direct the activities of others. But he isn't content to do just that. The other day he went on a dangerous bombing mission, flew into heavy ack-ack and dropped eggs. Some ack-ack knocked out his right engine and he headed back for a landing behind our lines. When he put the plane down, the left tire hit a sharp stone and blew out. But he brought her in safely. American officers are like that — always doing more than they are supposed to do.

Morale of the boys I met was high. Captain T. S. Cordill, 36, of Los Angeles, who is our Senior Chaplain in the Middle East, told me that they have no worries except those caused by news in their letters from home.

All Are Healthier

They are the healthiest bunch I ever saw — rosy cheeked, tanned, clear-eyed. Captain O. H. Akre, 26, of Clarkfield, Minn., flight surgeon of one unit, told me the men are healthier in the western desert than in the United States.

All these boys have what it takes to win wars.

I spent 24 hours with eight fighter pilots going out on a predawn strafing mission. In the evening we briefed—that is, we received instructions about strafing the target, an enemy airdrome.

I slept in the tent of one Captain Glade "Buck" Bilby, 23, of Skidmore, Mo., tagged by friends "the Clark Gable of the Western Desert." I got up at 4 a. m. and ate breakfast with them as they talked about the job they were going to do. It was a highly perilous mission, but they discussed the last letters they had received from home. We finished breakfast and they took off in a purple haze. An hour and a half later seven came back. The eighth had crashed in enemy territory.

We sat around the table and reviewed the mission. They didn't say much about the eighth who didn't come back. Instead they talked about a blond singer they had heard in Miami, Florida.

That is what it takes.

Two Building Permits Issued Here in Week

Two building permits for construction estimated to total $200 were issued last week by City Clerk Mayme Gorton

The preceding week two permits were issued for construction estimated at $525

War priorities and approaching winter are regarded as responsible for the sharp decline in the number of building permits issued in recent weeks.

The two issued last week were as follows:

J. T Maffin, 775 York street, dwelling, $100.

H E. Fairchild, Prospect road, addition to filling station, $100

SMALL RADIATORS HELP SAVE METALS

Large Tube Type Eliminated As War-Time Measure.

Many of the wartime innovations now being developed in the plumbing and heating industries are providing builders and homeowners with more attractive products while at the same time a substantial saving in critical metals is being effected, says the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau

A case in point is the elimination of large tube radiators in favor of the more attractive and compact small tube units While there has been a pronounced trend toward the slender radiators for some years, most manufacturers continued to make both styles. Recently a simplification program has been worked out by the boiler and radiator industry in cooperation with the WPB, and manufacturers will cease to make the larger radiators

The small radiators on which the industry will now concentrate its efforts take only about 40 per cent as much space as the larger units yet they have the same heating efficiency. Being less bulky, the small tube radiators require less metal and it is estimated that about 11,500 tons of cast iron will be saved annually.

The slender, graceful lines of the small tube radiators and their minimum space requirements make them particularly adaptable to recessing under windows. The effect in this location is to conserve floor space while at the same time preventing cold floors, drafts off windows, and wide temperature differences between floor and ceiling.

DIRT WASTES FUEL

By The United Press

MINNEAPOLIS — "The scale that accumulates on heating surfaces in furnaces and boilers wastes fuel by forcing the heating plant to labor harder to produce the temperature you require," says Henry F. Dever, vice president in charge of engineering for the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. Have both the heating plant and the chimney stack cleaned, Dever advises.

Bedrooms of more than usual small-home size, plus a spacious corner porch that means an extra summer room, are features of this modern dwelling design approved by the Federal Home Building Service

This story-and-a-half frame home has the bath and two bedrooms on the upper level. There is an exceptionally large storage room on the upper floor.

The downstairs floor space encompasses an "engineered" kitchen, a dining alcove and a long living room with three-side exposure.

The designers made inclusion of an attached garage optional

The estimated cost was set between $4,400 and $4,900, including garage and basement.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES

O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q. The ornamental grass that I have planted around the front and side of my house as a foundation planting is not growing so well as it should, although I have limed the soil heavily and have watered it more or less regularly with manure tea. Can you suggest any reason for these plants not growing properly? H. P., Tiffin.

A. In your part of the state where the soil is naturally neutral, there is absolutely no need for the application of lime. In fact, if you put on very much lime, as the test of the soil in your particular case shows, the soil becomes so alkaline that it may retard plant growth I would suggest that you counteract the lime that you have put on by an application of alum or aluminum sulfate, using about one pound to a square yard Sprinkle this on top of the ground and it will soak in of its own accord in time. In regard to the use of manure tea or liquid manure, that is an old-fashioned English idea that has always struck me as a nuisance and bother. Actually, the manure itself will be far more beneficial than the liquid extract of it for the simple reason that practically all of our soils not only respond to but require additional quantities of organic matter. Manure will supply it.

HALLWAY MADE LIGHTER

A hallway lacking natural light was made brighter by coating chairs and table with an off-white paint. Large floral prints, mounted on white mats and inclosed in white frames, add further cheerful touches.

ASBESTOS SIDING

Asbestos siding should be exposed to the weather for several months before painting If this waiting period is not convenient a surface wash composed of two pounds of zinc sulfate dissolved in one gallon of water may be used

ESSENTIAL REPAIR WORK ENCOURAGED

Home Owners Urged To Protect Health and Investment.

With fewer motor trips possible because of the gasoline oil and rubber shortage, there will be more opportunities for many people to discover the pleasures of owning their own homes And because the American public is going to spend so much more time within the precincts of their homes they cannot afford to let their homes crumble.

It is important, according to home building experts, that such essential repairs as are necessary to maintain health and sanitation be continued during the war period America has a large investment in its homes—more than $80,000,000,000 in housing that must be safeguarded.

Home owners have an obligation to keep their properties in good condition and to make whatever repairs may be necessary. It is an obligation they owe to themselves as well as to the communities in which they live. One home, if permitted to become rundown and neglected, can adversely affect an entire neighborhood and community.

The majority of rundown properties can be attributed directly to indifference and neglect

There are many ways of rejuvenating existing home properties without resorting to the use of materials vital to the war effort, and the owner does not need ready cash in order to make these improvements or even necessary repairs. By applying to his local FHA office, or any FHA-approved lending institution, he can obtain all the details for obtaining a home-repair loan.

These loans are made on very lenient terms and worked out to suit the borrower's convenience. They are made in amounts up to $2,500 for necessary maintenance and repair work and are not restricted to war industrial areas, as is the case with new-home construction. Home-repair loans of this type are repaid in regular monthly installments.

In the case of property-conversion loans, the maximum amount obtainable is $5,000, which is also repaid in monthly installments, but the length of time is extended to seven years. Property-conversion loans are restricted to war industrial areas and are intended to stimulate the conversion of existing home properties into apartment and rooming residences to provide necessary housing for war workers and their families.

Paint Called Important Factor in Keeping Homes in Good Repair

Such painting and redecorating as is necessary to maintain homes in a sound and livable condition may be undertaken without authorization of the war production board, housing experts point out

The importance of keeping America's existing home properties in sound repair cannot be overemphasized New home building is out for the duration. The only new residential construction to be undertaken from now on will be that absolutely essential for the housing of war workers.

If you are a home owner, you have a responsibility to keep that property in good repair. One way in which you can live up to that responsibility is not to neglect necessary painting

Paint protects your home from the elements. Without it, wood, metals, and other materials soon decay and deteriorate. This is particularly true in the case of frame houses thereby including the bulk of the nation's small homes

When painting is neglected, nails holding the siding and shingles in place rust out and the lumber becomes loosened. The lumber itself, because of constant exposure to the elements, becomes dry and rot is very apt to set in If neglected, such deterioration can only lead to expensive repair bills

Aside from the protection that paint gives to your home, it also adds to its attractiveness, and thereby its value. At the first sign that your home needs painting, get on the job at once You will find that it is a great economy, and in these days economy means more than ever before,

The same is true of necessary painting and redecorating within the home Among other things, painting and papering provide insulation to the home. Such repairs will go a long way toward keeping your home warm this winter, and at the same time reduce the amount of fuel used for this purpose Repainting and repapering also add to the livability of your home, making it a more attractive and cheerful place

Wool Market Dull, Boston Paper Reports

BOSTON, Nov. 14—The Commercial Bulletin said today:

"The intervention of the holiday, Wednesday, rendered a dull wool market even less animate, so that the volume of business done this week has been extremely light. Such wools as have been sold, however, have a wide range in grades and types, with small quantities involved and at fully firm prices.

"Reports from the west indicate only occasional cars of wool moved at firm rates. Stocks left in the west are very limited.

"Rather more activity in mohair in Texas is reported at 45 cents for adult and 60 cents for kid hair."

The paper published these Ohio quotations:

Domestic fleeces—Delaine unwashed 48-50; ½ blood combing 50-51; ⅜ blood combing 50-51; ¼ blood combing 52-54.

— TO ALL —
COAL USERS

The Retail Coal Merchant is Under Government Orders to Conserve Trucks and Tires and Effect a 25% Reduction in Delivery Mileage.

It is Necessary for the Coal Companies and the Consuming Public to Cooperate If You Are To Receive Sufficient Coal This Winter and for the Duration.

All Trucks Must Carry Capacity Loads!

When Ordering Coal:

• ORDER NOT LESS THAN 2 TONS or PREFERABLY ORDER ENOUGH TO LAST THE REST OF THE WINTER.
Extra trips to your house waste badly needed tires and trucks that must last for the duration of the war.

• KEEP A WATCHFUL EYE ON YOUR COAL BIN
Do not let your coal supply get too low before reordering. For your protection keep at least two weeks' supply of coal on hand against an emergency.

• DO NOT SPECIFY A CERTAIN TIME FOR DELIVERY.
Deliveries can not always be made at a specified time or on a specified day. Give your Coal Company at least four days' notice in which to deliver your coal. If you leave your home before the coal arrives, arrange with your neighbor to receive it.

• DO NOT ASK YOUR DEALER TO MOVE COAL IN YOUR BIN
There are not enough men available for this work. Employ the neighborhood handy man, employ boys after school, or, if possible, move the coal yourself.

These changes are in the public interest and are inspired by suggestions received from the Office of Defense Transportation to conserve rubber (tires) with the sole purpose of extending the life and usefulness of coal trucks for the duration and to avoid the adoption of far more drastic regulations later.

FEWER FRILLS, BYRNES WARNS

Civilian Needs To Be Geared To Bed-Rock Program To Help War Output.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 — There'll be fewer varieties in civilian shopping centers and less choice of styles and models under a geared to endorse broad program put underway by Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes to turn more production capacity to war goods.

He knew well up in his program elimination of "frills and wasteful practice," and added:

"By reducing the number of varieties, styles and models, eliminating unnecessary color, decoration, fancy packaging and the like we can clear the way for fuller production of basic essentials."

Byrnes also pointed out in a summary of his "vigorous program of curtailment and standardization of practices" that he has given the office of civilian requirements the power to determine "our bedrock requirements which must constitute a first call to the fullest war production."

But he added promptly, "it is not, of course, our intention to try to reduce civilians to this bedrock minimum."

He disclosed also that he had asked the budget bureau to review all subsidies to determine possibilities of reductions or entire elimination. Soil conservation payments to farmers were not included in the group, Byrnes' aide said.

As alternatives to eliminating or reducing subsidiaries, Byrnes said he had in mind possibilities of lowering profit margins and reducing costs by simplification and standardization.

AFRICA

The exact position of France's old Marshal Petain still was obscure, but it was apparent that he was acting under heavy Nazi pressure and virtually a German prisoner.

Radio Contradicts Petain

A Vichy broadcast asserted the 88-year-old French chief of state had sent a message to Admiral Darlan declaring that Darlan's decision to resume responsibility for French interests in Africa, with the approval of American authorities, was against Petain's orders.

Reports from Tangier said British troops, the vanguard of Lieut.-Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British-American expeditionary column, had already crossed into Tunisia from Algeria.

Nazi parachute troops were reported in control of the airdrome at Tunis, 80 miles east of the Tunisian frontier, which was again under heavy attack last night.

The Algiers radio said Tunis was under air-raid alarm thrice during the night, once for three hours and later for 30 minutes.

A British communique said allied planes also bombed and machine-gunned the Tunis airdrome Thursday night, destroying Nazi planes, gasoline supplies, workshops and hangars.

Even as Berlin radio propagandists trumpeted the assertion that the Anglo-American offensive in North Africa had failed to meet Moscow's second-front desires, Premier Joseph Stalin personally expressed a different viewpoint.

In a new letter to Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press bureau chief in Moscow, Stalin expressed confidence that the effect of the allied drive "will not be a small one" in easing the pressure on Russia.

"It represents an outstanding fact of major importance... opening the prospect of the disintegration of the Italo-German coalition in the nearest future," Stalin said.

Stalingrad Pressure Increases

Meanwhile, the Red armies yielded slightly as the Germans pressed a furious new assault in the bloody northside factory district of Stalingrad, but Soviet headquarters declared at noon today that the advance was "insignificant."

The Russian communique said further Nazi attacks were thrown back, with the Germans leaving 900 dead on the rubble-littered streets.

Northwest of the besieged Volga metropolis, Red army troops were reported to have stormed a "large populated place," inflicted heavy casualties on the Germans and beat off Nazi counterattacks.

Russian gains also were noted in two sectors of the Caucasus—on the Nalchik plateau, where the Nazi drive toward the Georgian military highway was declared blunted, and northeast of Tuapse on the Black sea coast.

With the allies now within striking distance of Italy, reports from Rome via Switzerland indicated that Premier Mussolini was feverishly attempting to tighten control over the disheartened and invasion-fearing Italian people.

These dispatches said "the supreme leadership of the Fascist party is striving to tighten the reins and that party leaders had been ordered to exercise 'merciless severity against all defeatist elements and spreaders of alarmist rumors.'"

Meantime, Japan narrowly watched the situation resulting from Hitler's disastrous setbacks in the Mediterranean theater.

The Japanese embassy in Berlin announced that all Japanese chiefs of diplomatic missions in Europe had been assembled in the German capital since Nov. 10 and had "thoroughly studied" the turn of events.

CITES NEED OF FOOD IN WAR

President Tells U. S. Grangers Demands on Farmers Are Without Limit.

By The Associated Press

WENATCHEE, Wash., Nov. 14 —President Roosevelt told the nation's grangers today, in a special message to their 76th national convention, that "in this war, the need for American food and other farm products is almost without limit."

"This year American farmers made a magnificent response to the demands upon them," the President said in a message to the grange master, Albert S. Goss. "Those demands are increasing; so are the obstacles in meeting them.

"The rural families of the United States face many sacrifices, many difficulties. The nation looks to them to produce the food we need to win this war, and to fulfill all their other wartime obligations as citizens. As in the past, the great farm organizations have a large place in helping farmers work together for victory."

President Is Granger

In a message as one granger to another—the President has been a member of the Chapel Corner grange in Dutchess county, New York, for 27 years—the Chief Executive expressed the belief that "In all its long history, the national grange never has met at a time when the nation depended more upon its farmers, and farmers faced so many grave decisions. I say this in the knowledge that the grange was born in the very shadow of the Civil war . . ."

The President's message shared convention interest with a sharply critical report on the synthetic rubber situation by E. T. Taylor, chairman of the grange's transportation committee.

Denouncing what he charged were obstacles placed in the way of synthetic rubber development by selfish interests, Taylor, master of the Idaho state grange, reported that a new and secret miracle process had been devised.

Process Is Simple

He said the process was "just about as simple as dropping some potatoes, wheat or beans in a kettle, adding some gelatine, cooking it a while and then putting on your new tires and driving away."

The secret process, Taylor said, has been offered to the war production board and "would eliminate even the necessity of making alcohol in the process, but so far we have had no encouragement."

He said the process would produce synthetic rubber at less than 10 cents a pound and that production from farm products could be started in one-third the time it would take under the petroleum process.

Taylor charged that "the greed of the rubber, petroleum and industrial alcohol industries," fearblocking development of the synthetic post-war competition, was thetic rubber processes.

Tokyo Reports New Sea Battle Raging

By The Associated Press

Imperial Tokyo headquarters acknowledged today that a Japanese battleship had been damaged and two Japanese destroyers sunk in a fierce three-day-old battle still raging off Guadalcanal island in the Solomons, but declared that heavy blows had been inflicted on the allies.

This was the first indication of a major new sea-air battle around the lower end of the South sea Archipelago, where U. S. Army troops and Marines have been holding out for weeks against encircling Japanese forces.

More than balancing its own losses, as usual, the Japanese command asserted that powerful Japanese naval and air forces had sunk six United Nations cruisers and a destroyer, heavily damaged two cruisers and three destroyers, set three transports afire and shot down 19 planes.

Ten Japanese planes were listed missing.

All these claims lacked confirmation from any allied source, but Tokyo's admission that a Japanese battleship had been damaged suggested that the main enemy fleet had returned and that a large-scale engagement was in progress.

The Japanese fleet had previously withdrawn from the Solomons after suffering heavy losses.

Imperial headquarters said Japanese warships launched the attack Thursday and by night had penetrated into allied naval lines and "destroyed more than half of the entire enemy naval craft and transports there."

The Navy in Washington and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said American and allied forces had damaged two Japanese cruisers and an 8,000-ton transport, destroyed 30 large landing boats and 30 planes, silenced enemy shore batteries and killed 700 or 800 Japanese.

U. S. TO HELP NORTH AFRICA

Lend-Lease Assistance To Be Given Lands Occupied by Americans.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—While the Yanks in North Africa drove an unexpected blow into the Nazi breadbasket, the cold, hungry and disarmed peoples of axis-occupied lands had President Roosevelt's pledge today that food, clothing and fighting equipment would be provided them with the coming of the allies.

By presidential order, lend-lease supplies will be sped to the people of French North Africa—where American capture of vital axis-bound food and materials in recent days is expected to put morale-damaging cramps in German stomaches and production lines alike.

In a strategic move aimed at softening even pseudo-resistance to the spreading allied offensive, the President late yesterday made it clear that the same consideration would be given any territory occupied by United Nations troops, "if it is humanly within our powers."

The office of war information predicted that American occupation of North Africa would cost Germany annually 50,000 sheep, thousands of barrels of wheat and flour, 80,000,000 kilograms of olive oil, 2,000,000 tons of phosphate, 2,000 tons of rubber, small but important shipments of cobalt, manganese, molybdenum and antimony, and quantities of cocoa, coffee, tobacco, dates and bananas.

In addition, OWI said Germany had been getting some tin, tungsten and rubber from Japan, frequently using North African ports.

Stalin Sees War Picture Shifting in Allies' Favor

Exactly one year ago today Premier Stalin received Harold Lancaster Cecil Minchin, chief of the American United Press bureau in Moscow, and delivered a journalistic coup when he obtained from Soviet circles a written statement expressing for the first time the Soviet government's views on the entire broad question. Now Cassidy has obtained answers by obtaining replies to a few questions to the Soviet leader on the North African campaign.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Copyright, 1942, by The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Nov. 14—Joseph Stalin gave high praise today to the American and British campaign in North Africa and declared that it had created the prerequisites for a second front in Europe and shifted the political and military situation in Europe "in favor of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition."

In his second letter to this correspondent in six weeks, the Soviet leader said the operations in North Africa could have been executed only by "first rate organizers" and pledged that "the Red army will fulfill its tasks with honor as it has been fulfilling it throughout the war."

The Soviet leader said the North African campaign would result in "a certain relief in pressure" on the Soviet Union in the near future and provided the "prospect of the disintegration of the Italo-German coalition."

Authorized Translation

The authorized English translation of the text of Stalin's letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Cassidy:

"I am answering your questions which reached me on Nov. 12th.

"One. What is the Soviet view of the allied campaign in Africa?

"Answer. The Soviet view of this campaign is that it represents an outstanding fact of major importance demonstrating the growing might of the armed forces of the allies and opening the prospect of the disintegration of the Italo-German coalition in the nearest future.

"The campaign in Africa refutes once more the skeptics who affirm the Anglo-American leaders are not capable of organizing a serious war campaign. There can be no doubt that no one but first rate organizers could carry out such serious war operations as the successful landings in North Africa across the ocean, as the quick occupation of harbors and wide territories from Casablanca to Bougie and as the smashing of Italo-German armies in the western desert, being effected with such mastery.

"Two. How effective has this campaign been in relieving pressure on the Soviet Union and what further aid does the Soviet Union await?

"Answer. It is yet too soon to say to what an extent this campaign has been effective in relieving immediate pressure on the Soviet Union. But it may be confidentially said that the effect will not be a small one and that a certain relief in pressure on the Soviet Union will result in the nearest future.

Other Angles

"But that is not the only thing that matters. What matters first of all is that since the campaign in Africa means that the initiative has passed into the hands of our allies, the campaign changes radically the political and war situation in Europe in favor of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition; that that campaign undermines the prestige of Hitlerite Germany as a leading force in the system of the axis powers and demoralizes Hitler's allies in Europe, that the campaign released France from her state of lethargy and mobilizes anti-Hitler forces of France and provides a basis for building up an anti-Hitler French army, that the campaign creates conditions for putting Italy out of commission and for isolating Hitlerite Germany; finally, that the campaign creates the prerequisites for establishment of a second front in Europe nearer to Germany's vital centers which will be of decisive importance for organizing victory over Hitlerite tyranny.

"Three. What particularly is there of Soviet offensive power in the east forcing the allies in the west to hasten the final victory?

"Answer. There need be no doubt that the Red army will fulfill its task with honor as it has been fulfilling it throughout the war.

"With respect, (signed) J. Stalin."

In his first letter to me, Stalin said that allied aid had been of little effect compared to Soviet contributions to the conduct of the war and called upon the allies to fulfill their obligations fully and promptly. He said a second front was of paramount importance.

Darlan Provides One of Strange Mysteries of War

The following article substitutes for the daily column "The War Today," by DeWitt Mackenzie, who is now touring the war zones.

By JOHN FERRIS

One of the most engaging mysteries of the Vichy regime is provided for the apparent about-face of Admiral Jean Darlan, once regarded as one of the most violently anti-British followers of Marshal Petain.

By accident or design Darlan has now become a prisoner of the allied forces and is sitting at their council tables in Algiers. He has ordered the French to cease hostilities, and has appealed to the French fleet to sail from Toulon to North Africa.

These developments, viewed against the background of the past two years, have furnished a fascinating subject for speculation.

Was he really sincere in his collaboration or was he carrying on a gigantic piece of play-acting?

Consider the case: One day he is denouncing the British for their invasion of Madagascar and by inference the United States as well for its support of that action, labeling the British "highway robbers and condemning "Anglo-Saxons" in general.

Sees Better Course

Now he apparently is persuaded that a better course is to accept the allies successes in French territory, convinced that the United States has no territorial ambitions and that France will ultimately rise again. Thus he urges the military cooperation of other Frenchmen with the United Nations.

One day he is talking bitterly of a possible invasion of Dakar and French West Africa. Three weeks later he is conferring with the men whom, he had told the world, he would fight in defense of the French empire.

He talks to Hitler and Ribbentrop and other Nazis. For months he shuttles between Vichy and Paris, between Petain and Pierre Laval and the Nazi conquerors. Now he turns to the men intent on crushing Hitler.

Only one thing seems to stand out consistently in those two and a half years during which he held the British to be his foes. That was his reiterated determination never to surrender the fleet to the Germans. He might say openly he hated the British and termed the British blockade of France "imbecile," but he would never permit the seizure of the fleet. And he inspected it regularly.

Takes Responsibility

"I assume full responsibility for French interests in Africa," he said in his broadcast statement yesterday, adding that he had "the approval of American authorities with whom I count on assuring the defense of North Africa."

Defenders of Darlan's activities long have argued that some measure of collaboration was necessary and that he was a magnificent exponent of the tactics of stalling while awaiting the proper moment to throw in France's lot with the allies. The German victory, which many Frenchmen once expected, would explain in part both his attitude and that of Marshal Petain, who unlike Laval, has never publicly voiced the hope of a German triumph.

TWO OHIOANS ESCAPE DEATH

Cleveland and Lorain Men Saved As Wasp Goes Down in Pacific.

By The Associated Press

AN ADVANCE BASE, SOUTH PACIFIC, Nov. 14—The narrow escape of two Ohioans from the flaming aircraft carrier Wasp after it was torpedoed by Jap sub. marines in the Solomons, Sept. 15, was told by one of the men from a hospital bed today.

Shipfitter Clarence Hall of Cleveland recounted how he was burned and Andy Pollace of Lorain, O., suffered a broken arm when a torpedo struck.

Hall said he was standing in the mess compartment on the third deck when the first torpedo struck. "There was a sudden rippling explosion on the starboard side," he related, "and flames—probably from the torpedo hitting gasoline—hit me in the face. Two men standing beside me disappeared.

"One was Andy Pollace of Lorain, O., who later was rescued, with a broken arm. The other man—I don't know his name—was killed.

Flames Roar Up

"The torpedo hit two decks below me but the flames roared way up to the flight deck.

"I knew I was badly burned but it didn't hurt me yet. I tried to get to my battle station but couldn't go forward because of the flames. I ran to the port side but just then another torpedo struck and I was hit by the flames again.

"I tried to get up the ladder but was knocked back by a third torpedo. This time the flames burned off most of my clothes—even the socks off my feet, and my skin came off in shreds.

"I remember passing a close friend who rushed by not recognizing me because I was so black. I found the sick bay doctors and assistants scurrying about trying to treat the scores of injured. I was told to lie on the floor. I then passed out. When I came to nobody was there and I thought everybody had abandoned ship and left me for dead.

"I hollered but no answer. All lights in the ship were out. I fished through my clothing and found a waterproof container with my money and personal valuables and that's all I took. I couldn't open the hatches because my burned hands were useless, so I thought I was a goner.

Removed from Ship

"Then a chief petty officer and a seaman came back to get me and they led me to the hangar deck. I wish I knew their names so I could thank them for saving my life."

FEEDER SHIPMENTS TO CORN BELT UP

Profitable Feeding Possible, Livestock Circles Believe.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 14—Reports of the department of agriculture on the number of cattle shipped into the corn belt for feeding during October were seen by livestock circles today as an indication that producers were willing to take a chance on profitable feeding operations despite price ceilings on beef.

This is a matter of considerable importance for the country's total beef supply, it was said, because it is the feeders who put weight on young cattle.

Earlier this year, when the livestock trade was originally influenced by beef ceilings, there was a sharp drop in buying of cattle for feeding purposes. On Aug. 1 there were 19 per cent less cattle in feed lots of the corn belt than there had been a year earlier.

Since that time, there has been a pick-up in purchases. A gain of 9 per cent in shipments to the corn belt was reported in August and September, as compared with last year, and in October shipments were up 20 per cent. October shipments, according to the department, probably exceeded the record October of 1940.

Meanwhile, the country continues to send large number of cattle to market. Cattle inspected at public stockyards in October were about 19 per cent over October, 1941, and the largest for the month since 1930.

The department said, however, that its reports continued to indicate a reduction in cattle feeding in nearly all western states. This was blamed on the delay in the beet harvest. It was said that it would be some weeks before the situation in the west could be known with much certainty.

Choice fed steers and yearlings were steady to strong this week. Hog prices lost as much as 50 cents. Fat lambs and yearlings closed 25 to 50 cents higher.

War Wife Keeps Busy

MODERN MADONNA: Betty Davis with son, Johnny.

By ADELAIDE KERR
War World Features Writer

Introducing Betty Ingles Davis—war-wife, mother and typist.

A woman who is meeting the same problems millions of others have met and meeting them in a way that can give you a few tips.

When Bernard Davis went to war and his family's income was more than cut in two, Betty Davis gave up their seven-room house in New York's suburbs and moved into a four-room apartment in Jackson Heights. She has kept her own job as a case worker in the Community Service Society and cares for Johnny (who is almost four), while she awaits the birth of another baby in January.

Betty Davis is a daughter of the South—tall, dark-eyed, soft-voiced. She was graduated from Hollins College (Virginia) and took her Masters' Degree in Social Science at William and Mary. In 1935, while she was doing social service work in Baltimore, she was married to Bernard Davis, who left his job as personnel director with the New York State Employment Service to enter the Technical Training Division of the Army Air Corps at Miami Beach.

That left Mrs. Davis alone to run the household. But don't picture her as a worried, nervous war-wife. She sits quietly, talks gently, seasoning her words with a warm, white smile. (Only her dark eyes hold a hint of stress.)

"It's a difficult adjustment to make—and it doesn't get any easier," she says. "But I've just rejected the fact that it's part of the times and I have to adjust to it.

"The job helps, of course. First, it keeps me busy. And then in my work I come in contact with many people who are in difficulty. I have heard the stories of so many women worse off than I am that I don't seem to be having a bad time.

"Their greatest difficulty is economic—the problem of providing and caring for the children."

Mrs. Davis solved her child care problem like this: She gets breakfast herself while Johnny careens around on his tricycle. During the morning she leaves him in a nursery school. The colored maid she has had for years cares for him in the afternoon and gets dinner. Then Mrs. Davis takes Johnny in charge for a story hour before he goes to bed.

Johnny has had some wartime adjustment problems, too. It wasn't fun to leave his friends and yard in the country for a small apartment in town. He misses his father, too.

Most of Mrs. Davis' letters to her husband are written on the subway—she carries a pad and pencil in her bag and writes going to and from work.

"The blues? I just won't have them," she says. "I think the secret of avoiding them is to keep busy, to keep interested in people and to have people around. And this is a tip to all war wives."

Harding Blanks Galion 34-0 To Cop N. C. O. Grid Title

Prexies Cop Fourth Straight Crown in Final 1942 Game

LeRoy Harvey and Harold Jenkins Star As Local Eleven Crushes Orangemen.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

MARION HARDING'S football Presidents, defeated only once this year, concluded Marion's 1942 scholastic gridiron program last night at Harding stadium, winning over an inferior Galion Orangemen team, 34-0, to cop their second straight undisputed North Central Ohio championship.

While the victory over the Galions clinched the 1942 league championship for the Presidents it also marked the fourth straight year in which the locals have shared in the championship. Harding won the 1939 title, ending a 10-year skid, but shared in a three-way split for the 1940 title after suffering a 16-6 upset defeat administered by the Bucyrus Redmen. Shelby, along with Marion and Bucyrus, shared in the 1940 title split. Last year Harding campaigned undefeated and unscored on, but tied twice, to finish in front of the other five teams.

Doped to finish no better than second this year, Harding, at the start of the season, appeared to be headed for a downfall with either Ashland or the Mt. Vernon Yellow Jackets likely to take over the league's top spot. However, a stubborn, well coached Harding team breezed past Mt. Vernon by 20-7 and two weeks later waded to a 14-13 win over the A's to establish themselves as favorites to repeat.

List of Victims

Other victims of Harding this year, besides Galion, are Columbus West 18-6, Mt. Vernon 20-7, Lima Central 8-7, Ashland 14-13, Bucyrus 20-6 and Shelby 20-0.

Sandusky's Blue Streaks were the only victor over Harding, winning 20-0 in the first game after the crucial Marion-Ashland battle.

Last night's win marked the close of a near perfect season for Harding coaches, Vic Dorris and Joe Petrich, in their first year at the helm of the local eleven. Dorris replaced William O. "Bill" Williams as head coach and Petrich became assistant coach replacing George Niemi. Williams is now head coach and athletic director at University school in Columbus, and Niemi is in the navy.

Fullback LeRoy Harvey and Halfback Harold Jenkins again stole Harding's brilliant offensive show. Jenkins packed three of Harding's five touchdowns while Harvey accounted for the remaining two. In addition Harvey scored three extra points, two from placement and one on a line buck. Stu Young, a junior halfback, plunged for Harding's fourth point after touchdown.

While Jenkins and Harvey were grabbing the scoring spotlight, Backs Fred Ruhl and Calvin Scott were performing brilliantly on blocking assignments.

Plays Best Game

Don Benedict, senior right end, played his best game of the season. Tackle Don Kay, Guard Tom Boyd and Capt. Keith Williams, turned in sterling defensive performances.

Guard Bob Dixon was one of the key factors in a stubborn Harding first half defense which stopped Galion almost cold. He suffered a twisted knee in a pile-up near the end of the first half. Recovered sufficiently to start the second half, Dixon received several hard blows in the early part of the third quarter and finally he was replaced midway in the quarter.

Dester Russell, the Harding's giant tackle, was another Harding lineman lauded by Coach Dorris for exceptionally outstanding play.

Jubilant over the victory which gave him a league championship in his first season at Harding, Coach Dorris praised the entire team for its stellar work as a unit. The Harding line, one of the prime factors in the team's drive to the top of the N. C. O pack, repulsed almost every Galion drive. The Orangemen picked up 45 yards by rushing in the first half and 21 in the second half. However, losses on attempted rushes totaling 71 yards resulted in a net loss of five yards. In other words Galion failed to gain as much yardage as their total yardage loss.

Last for 17 Seniors

Making their final appearance as Harding gridders were 17 seniors, including the starting 11. They are Capt. Keith Williams, Don Benedict, Gene Foley, Jim Midlam, Don Kay, Lester Russell, Jack Whaley, Francis O'Hara, Tom Boyd, Bob Dixon, Tom Hurst, Jack Sidenstricker, John Johnson, Harold Jenkins, LeRoy Harvey, Fred Ruhl and Calvin Scott.

Less than 1,500 fans witnessed last night's game which was featured by a Dad's Day program at halftime. Low temperatures and a stiff wind made playing and spectator conditions bad.

Less than a minute after the opening kickoff Jenkins, a strong candidate for mythical all-state honors, scooted 40 yards on an off tackle smash for the first score. Here's the way the score materialized. Stoner kicked off for Galion. Harvey taking the end-over-end kick on his own 22 and racing back 22 yards to the Harding 44. Jenkins gained two yards through left tackle and Harvey plunged for 11 yards and a first down on the Galion 40. Jenkins was back for the next play. He paused momentarily, picking out a good hole, and then like a flash of light streaked through the tackle spot. Twenty yards past the line of scrimmage he came face to face with the Galion safety, who was running at top speed in a desperate attempt to force the Harding speedster out of bounds. Jenkins halted momentarily while the safety, Bill Stoner, dove past him and then continued unmolested for the touchdown. Harvey's kick for the extra point was wide.

Three minutes later found the Hardings again on the march after stopping four straight Galion line plays. Taking over on the Galion 30, LeRoy Harvey, Jenkins, Scott and Ruhl fought their way to the Galion 4. From this point Harvey plummeted through the Galion line for the score. Stu Young was hustled into the game with instructions to try a plunge for the extra point. His try was good, increasing Harding's advantage to 13-0. The score remained unchanged throughout the remaining six minutes of the first quarter.

Second Period Score

Harvey, Jenkins and Ruhl marked up four straight first downs at the start of the second period as the Hardings moved almost 70 yards for their third score. While they advanced the ball 52 yards in the march, two penalties, one 15 yards for holding and another five yards for offsides, resulted in the longer drive. Ruhl raced 18 yards for what appeared to be a touchdown but the play was called back because of a holding infraction. Four plays later and on fourth down Jenkins went around big own left end for 11 yards and the Hardings' third touchdown. Jenkins was injured slightly on the play and he was replaced by Lawrence Daley. Harvey plunged for the extra point, making the score 20-0. The half ended six minutes later with no change in the score.

A 75-yard drive in four plays at the outset of the second half resulted in Harding's fourth six pointer. Harvey brought the opening kickoff back to the Harding 25 before being hauled down by a halfdozen Galion tacklers. On the next play Jenkins fumbled but recovered after a five yard loss. Harding was offsides on the next play and was set back another five yards to the Harding 34. On the next play Harvey smashed the center of the Galion line for 47 yards before being pulled down from behind after a Harding lineman missed an all-important block. A line plunge netted one yard and on the next play Jenkins sliced off left tackle for 18 yards and another touchdown. Harvey's placement was good.

Neither team threatened to score during the remainder of the third period but Harding again was in scoring positions five minutes after the start of the final quarter.

Blocks Galion Punt

Capt. Keith Williams broke through to block a Galion punt on the Galion 23 and carried to the 11 before being downed. In two plays Harvey smashed over for the final score. His try from placement for the extra point was good.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 — There must be some compelling reason when boys go out on a raw November afternoon without enough clothes to keep warm and run five or six miles over a hilly cross-country course. . . . And knowing that a couple hundred young men will do just that in the Big Ten meet at Chicago today and as many more will run Monday in the inter-collegiate A. A. A. A. meet here, this dept. sought a sound explanation. . . . The answer from Pete Waters, Manhattan college track coach is: "It's the best conditioner in the world. When boys run cross country in the fall, they're really in shape. Those milers you see in the Garden during the winter prove it." . . . Why is it better than running on a track? . . . "Well, the hills help, but mostly it's because the change of scenery pops them up. Running around in a squirrel cage gets pretty tiresome after a few laps."

• • •

It Can Happen—Ever hear of a forward pass catching the receiver instead of vice versa" . . . Well, it happened in a schoolboy game at Washington, D. C., between Western and Devitt the other day. . . . Halfback Duke O'Connell on Western pitched a pass. . . . The ball hit quarterback Alex Papanicolas on the back of the neck and stuck between his helmet and shoulder pad. . . . Pap ran 15 yards before he realized what had happened and then he reached around and grabbed the ball, making a 20-yard gain.

65,000 EXPECTED FOR BUCK-ILLINOIS GAME IN CLEVELAND

Big Ten Lead at Stake in Contest Set for Stadium.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14—Illinois, the team which has surprised the Western conference by moving into a first-place tie with Ohio State and Iowa, clashes with the Buckeyes in neutral Cleveland lakefront stadium today.

The Illini are playing their last conference game, and they must win to remain in the championship picture.

A crowd of 65,000 to 70,000 is expected to witness the first Western conference game ever played in Cleveland.

In their long series that began in 1902 and has run continuously in the Western conference since 1914, this is the first time Ohio and Illinois have met on a neutral gridiron.

The last Illini win was in 1931 at Champaign, 14 to 13, but the Buckeyes still have a margin of only 16 games to 11, with one tie, in conference play.

Illinois received a hard blow when Dick Good, the club's ace passer, was shelved with an injured knee in the Notre Dame game.

Elmer Engel, the alert end who grabbed a fumble out of the air and ran 33 yards for a touchdown against Northwestern last week, is bothered with a cold and has lost seven pounds, but stayed in the line-up.

Bill Durtschi, Ohio's ace punter, is still on the sidelines. Tom Cleary, another strong punter, received a broken wrist in the Pittsburgh game last week and is out for the season.

The field, which was practically ruined by a recent army war show, appears to be in better condition. The new sod has knitted somewhat and the footing may prove firm.

The line-ups:

Ohio State	Pos	Illinois

Csuri	LT	Genis

Houston	RG	Agase

Tax Rates Approved for Hardin County

KENTON, O., Nov. 14—Tax rates for Hardin county's 51 subdistricts for 1942 were approved this week by the auditor of state although County Auditor W. B. Wilson still lacked completed rates for three school districts in the Logan county system.

Of the 48 rates available, 27 represented increases over the 1941 tax collection schedule, 12 were the same as for the past year, and nine rates were lower.

Grid Games Go Where Customers Are Today

Four Contests Away from Campus of Either Rival; O. W. U. Game Cancelled for Lack of Transportation.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—If the upsets to date haven't convinced the fans there is something different in this football season, a glance at today's program should settle all doubts.

Yale vs. Princeton at New York.

Illinois vs. Ohio State at Cleveland.

Cornell vs. Dartmouth at Buffalo.

Columbia vs. Navy at Baltimore.

Ohio Wesleyan vs. Boston university, cancelled.

The Ohio Wesleyan - Boston university game was dropped because the mid-western eleven was unable to get travel accommodations to the east while the four other games were shifted from their campus settings under the war-born policy of bringing the game to the spectators instead of lugging the public to the centers.

But there are two sites, at least, where the football on display and the crowds in attendance today will be of the pre-Pearl Harbor variety.

Alabama vs. Georgia Tech

In one, once-beaten Alabama brings its defensive-minded outfit to Atlanta for a meeting with unbowed Georgia Tech. The other contest renews the Michigan-Notre Dame rivalry that was broken off at the turn of the century over an eligibility question.

Both at Atlanta and at South Bend only the capacity of the stadiums will limit the attendance. In the southern city they are all eager to see what Clint Castleberry and Eddie Prokop will do when they collide with that Crimson line and at South Bend the fans want to determine for themselves which is the better back, Angelo Bertelli of the Irish or Tom Kuzma.

But the clubs that changed their game sites aren't going to do so badly.

Every one of the 34,0000 seats in Baker Field was sold early in the week for the 68th meeting of Yale and Princeton; Cornell and Dartmouth expect to attract 20,000 to their Ivy league brush; there'll be 40,000 watching Paul Governali passing at Baltimore and some 65,000 will sit in on the Illinois-Ohio State proceedings with the Big Ten lead at stake.

Iowa vs. Minnesota

Iowa, tied with the Cleveland combatants for the loop top, is at Minnesota, whose Bill Daley isn't expected to get in the game; Wisconsin goes against Northwestern in the Purple's last chance of the year for a Big Ten win; Indiana entertains hapless Kansas State and Purdue argues with Michigan State.

Tulsa will try to prove its high rank by spilling Baylor and Texas Christian, one of the early season powers, hopes to apply the brakes to Texas' march to the Southwest conference flag.

Missouri, its casualty list shrinking, heads south for Oklahoma and a game that will virtually decide the Big Six crown. On the west coast St. Mary's Pre-Fliehters resume action at Washington and Southern California is host to Oregon.

OHIO STATE FROSH SINK INDIANA 13-7

Upper Sandusky Star Tallies Both Buck Touchdowns.

By The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 14—Ohio State university's freshman football team has two intercollegiate victories under its belt today.

The Buckeye yearlings followed up last week's defeat of Pittsburgh with a 13-7 win over the Indiana freshmen yesterday.

Tommy Phillips hurled a 20-yard pass to Russell Wolf for Ohio's first touchdown in the opening quarter and Wolf scooted 16 yards on a reverse for the second Buckeye score in the declining minutes of the final period.

A 16-yard pass, Stuart (Red) Faught to Francis Carter, put the Hoosiers on the one-yard line in the third period and Rex Grossman plunged for the touchdown on the next play.

Lou Groza kicked the Ohio extra point and Henry Bobak booted Indiana's.

How U. S. Will Convert Marion Homes To House War Workers

Following is one of a series of questions and answers on the home conversion program with the National Housing Agency to be inaugurated in Marion within two weeks to relieve the critical need of homes for workers at the Scioto Ordnance Plant and the Marion Engineer Depot and their families by citizens each day's action. Marion property owners will have the answers to virtually all their questions in connection with the program. The questions and answers were prepared by the National Housing Agency.

Q. Who will pay the taxes and insurance while the property is leased to the NHA?

A. The NHA.

• • •

Q. If a home has a mortgage on it, who will keep up the mortgage?

A. The NHA will make normal debt payments as they are due during the use of the property by the NHA.

• • •

Q. For how long will the government lease each property?

A. The lease will usually be for seven years, or two years after the war emergency, whichever alternative is longer.

• • •

Q. What about a vacant house, in rundown condition? Will the government lease and improve it?

A. Yes—providing it is suitable for conversion purposes.

• • •

Q. What if a property is near a war plant but has no utilities? Can it be leased?

A. Probably not — but an inspection will be made to determine the answer.

• • •

Q. Will the NHA deal with properties owned by municipalities, banks, insurance companies and others which may be vacant?

A. Yes, if suitably located and susceptible to conversion.

• • •

Q. Does the owner's income start as soon as the lease is signed, or after the conversion is done?

A. As soon as the lease is signed and the NHA is given possession of the property, the owner will be entitled to the rent specified in the lease.

• • •

Q. What is the basis for determining the amount of rent to the owner?

A. The amount is based on a standard rental scale, giving the owner a fair return based on the current income produced by the improved property after taxes, debt payments and a fair charge for the improvements are taken care of.

• • •

Q. What rents will be charged by the NHA to the tenants after a house is converted?

A. Standard rates for comparable property in the area.

• • •

Q. Will the taxes on a property be increased by conversion? Will an owner pay more taxes after the war?

A. It depends on local tax assessment practices. If taxes are increased they may be offset by the increased value of the property.

• • •

Q. How long will it take to convert a house?

A. It depends upon the size of the job. Every effort will be made to complete the work as soon as possible.

• • •

Q. Does the owner have to find a place to live while the conversion is being done?

A. If the owner now lives in the house, arrangements will be made, if possible, to let him occupy a portion of it while alterations are being made. In some cases, because of the volume of alterations, this will be impossible.

• • •

Q. If the taxes and mortgage payments on a property are delinquent, will the government pay them if it leases the property?

A. Yes — if the delinquencies are not so large that the transaction will not be warranted.

NURSES' REFRESHER FIRST AID COURSE IS SCHEDULED

Opening Session Arranged for Monday Night.

Final plans are being made today for the first aid class to be conducted for registered nurses as a refresher course in this particular field of their profession. The first meeting to discuss plans for conducting the class and registrations will be held Monday night at 7:15 o'clock at Harding High school. Miss Virginia O'Dowd, first aid instructor, will conduct the class.

While registered nurses covered the field of first aid in their study courses it was decided that all would benefit from a review of the work and that a refresher course would provide an opportunity for practical study of caring for injured in emergencies when only limited equipment would be available.

If a sufficient number of nurses are interested there also will be a morning class opened to provide an opportunity for nurses on night duty to take the course. The study will not be taken for credits and may be shortened, depending on the ground covered in each lesson.

There are about 150 electrically operated devices in an up to date telephone.

HARRISON CO. WINS WAR BOND HONORS

Selected As Having Done Outstanding Job in October.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 14 — Size, in terms of population, proved no handicap to high-flying Harrison county during October. A smashing record of activities and achievements in the state's War Savings program resulted in this small county being named "Champion War Bond County" in Ohio for the month. It was announced today by Harold H. Breslow, executive secretary, War Savings Staff for Ohio.

"Harrison County War Savings Chairman L. P. Reese, his local committee and all Harrison county citizens can feel mighty proud of having their county chosen as the 'Pacemaker County' in Ohio for October," Mr. Breslow said. "The other 87 counties in the state also did a fine job in selling War Bonds and installing Payroll Savings plans for the purchase of War Savings." Total sales in Ohio during the month were $43,994,209.

Harrison county is the fourth Ohio county to receive special recognition in the sale of War Bonds, Mahoning having won it in July, Medina in August, and Montgomery in September.

This recognition is based on general accomplishment in meeting its quota, total sale of bonds as compared to quota set, installation of payroll savings plans among firms; percentage of firms having 90 per cent participation and 10 per cent or more of total payroll being allotted to War Bond buying.

Every concern in Harrison county employing four or more people now has the payroll savings plan in operation for the regular systematic purchase of War Bonds. All county employes are participating 100 per cent in the purchase of War Savings.

Harrison county will be presented a scroll citation and a special honor flag, incorporating both the treasury department's "Minute Man" emblem and the State of Ohio seal. Volunteer workers of the Harrison County War Bond Staff will be feted later in the month at a banquet sponsored by the Standard Oil Co.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

War and TB

During the battle of Wagram, Beethoven sat in a cellar in Vienna about 10 miles away and composed one of the movements of the Eroica Symphony. During the French Revolution, Joseph Priestley, in England, although his country was at war with France, conducted a correspondence with the French physicist, Lavoisier, concerning the structure of certain gases.

When the soldiers of Marcellus found Archimedes in Syracuse, he was in his garden working on the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle. Charles Martel smashed the infidels at Tours, but one of them, Ibn Razak, was writing his commentaries on the Canon of Avicenna at Cordova. During the battle of Waterloo a young man was studying in the wards of the Necker Hospital in Paris and a year later he invented the stethoscope.

All of which is put down to illustrate that wars come and wars go and one side wins and one side loses, but the great tides of civilization sweep on undisturbed, and very are the most important things not the triumphs of the tapestry captains and diplomats. Man's inspired thought has made only a few nails in its advance from the days of Egypt, and those nails were put due to wars.

It is one of my deepest convictions that during this present emergency, no matter how urgent the demands for funds for war, we must hold the gains we have made to the permanent happiness of mankind.

Among these specifically is our astounding victory over tuberculosis—one of the worst enemies mankind ever had.

I quote a heading from a late number of the Journal of the American Medical Association: "Tuberculosis on the way out."

Our statistics for the whole registration area of the United States were completed in 1933. From 1900 to 1933 some of the states admitted had the highest mortality in tuberculosis because they were regarded as resort states where the climate was beneficial to the disease. Yet the recorded tuberculosis mortality in the registration area declined from 174 per 100,000 in 1900 to 42 in 1933.

Since 1923 the decline has been proportionately even more rapid. The total number of deaths in 1933 was 67,422 and in 1940, 55,576, and this despite a great gain in actual population.

In the West North Central Section, embracing seven states, the death rate from tuberculosis was 26 per 100,000 population in 1940.

The growth of institutional cases is shown by the figure that 44 per cent of all tuberculosis deaths now occur in institutions.

This is a gain which mankind cannot afford to let drift. There is every indication that the record can be made better. No matter what the exigencies of war, this country which suffers no destruction of its hospitals must keep up the work, by buying Christmas seals to prevent tuberculosis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. E.—His doctor tells my husband he has had active tuberculosis for 10 years. Could it be possible for him not to lose weight and carry on all this time? It is necessary for the wife to have X-rays and tests taken?

Answer: Yes, a person may have active tuberculosis but have acquired such an immunity that his activity is little affected. The wife should certainly have a thorough examination.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

BUT it was not Olga whom I saw that day, as it turned out. Early in the morning my telephone rang, and Olga's voice came over the wire.

"Would it be possible for me to see you a few minutes this morning?" she asked.

"Come right over now," I said cordially.

"Thank you. I'll be right over," she said.

When in less than five minutes her knock sounded, I had Dicky and my father beyond hearing in the living room of the adjoining suite.

She came in with a strangely different air. For usually she is regally poised. She carried a small blue writing case, which she placed on the table beside her when we were seated.

"Mama meant to see you herself," she said, "but she has one of her headaches this morning, and father will not let her leave her bed until it has vanished. So I came in her place."

Brings a Letter

"I am so sorry your mother isn't well," I told her, "but I am always glad to see you. What can I do for you?"

For answer she took from the portfolio the fan letter and drawing which we had pored over together when she first received them, and laid them on the table, then put into my hand another letter addressed to her, care of Philip Veltzen.

"I received this yesterday," she said, "but this is the first chance I have had to bring it to you."

"You want me to read this?" I said, and she voiced a hasty assent.

"Yes. You know he stipulated that it must be shown only to a government operative, so Mama wished you to see it, and then turn it over to your father."

I read the letter slowly, twice, memorizing it as I read.

"To the gracious princess, Olina," it began. "You and your mother are in great danger. Do not go on the streets, or anywhere outside your own home, unless you are heavily guarded. And have guards posted around your home. This is not idle chatter. I know whereof I speak. Be careful!

"If you desperately need me—not otherwise, for I am a hunted man—start this personal in the New York ——, 'A mot! P. G.,' and I will be at your side within an hour after it appears."

"Just a minute!" I said. "I will take this immediately to my father in the next suite. Please stay here until I come back."

I went swiftly through the camouflaged door and gave the letter to my father. He read it and handed it back.

"Keep it safely," he said, "and tell Olina that she is already heavily guarded, although she does not see the guards. I am thankful for this bit of information, however. It confirms something on which I have been working. Please keep her with you a little while. I want to talk with her."

When I went back Olina had the fan letter and picture in her hands. I gave her my father's message, but saw that her thoughts were elsewhere. Her face was drawn and tense, and her great lustrous eyes shadowed with tears she was too proud to shed.

"Oh, Aunt Madge," she said suddenly, as if the words were wrenched from her, "May I tell you now that old story this painting has brought back to me so vividly?"

I hesitated, for I knew how proud and reserved this exiled royal princess had always been. When she again gained control of herself, might she not keenly regret having confided in me?

But then came a sound which dispelled all my doubts; the sound of a sob, quickly choked back as her voice broke into a wailing question.

"Do you perhaps think I ought not tell you the story?" she asked.

Too Many Assessors, Mortgage Bankers Find

By The United Press

CHICAGO—There are more than 165,000 government units with taxing power in this country, but their number easily could be reduced to about 20,000 if public opinion would demand it, according to Charles A. Mullenix, of Cleveland, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

At their annual meeting here, association members voted to support the Coffee resolution—sponsored by Congressman John M. Coffee—which seeks to establish a commission of tax integration to eliminate overlapping powers and possible inefficiency in state and local systems.
